'Sleaze clips' put K'taka top cop Rao in spotlight

The undated video appears to have been filmed with a mobile phone inside his chamber and is said to be a compilation of multiple video clips.

BENGALURU

Karnataka police are left red-faced after a video purportedly showing Director General of Police (DGP) Ramachandra Rao in uniform in a compromising position with several women inside his office went viral on Monday.

It comes just a day after Chief Minister Siddaramaiah expressed strong displeasure over tainted police officials in the state.

Rao was caught on camera while allegedly kissing and cuddling with women while he was in uniform.

As the video went viral, Rao rushed to the residence of Home Minister Dr G Parameshwara.

Later speaking to reporters, he termed the video as fabricated and urged for an urgent investigation into the 'serious' matter.

He remarked he is in complete shock because of the fabricated video and added that a case against those spreading false news would be filed once he meets his advocate.

When asked if the video was shot in his office, the DGP said he served in Belagavi eight years back but did not elaborated or clarified the link between his Belagavi stint and the video.

The 47-second-long video looks being filmed using a mobile phone inside his police chamber. A compilation of multiple video clips, the video has sparked nationwide outrage.

Following the circulation of the footage, Bengaluru-based advocate Owaiz Hussain submitted a complaint to the chief minister, the Chief Justice of the Karnataka High Court, and the Director General and Inspector General of Police, seeking immediate immediate action. In his complaint, Hussain clarified that he was neither asserting the authenticity of the video nor making any direct allegation against the officer concerned, but sought an inquiry as the footage had entered the public domain.

CM ORDERS PROBE

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah said stringent action would be taken against the officer after a thorough inquiry. On the viral video of DGP K Ramachandra Rao, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah says, "The matter came to light this morning. We will take disciplinary action against him. No matter how tall someone is, we will investigate and take action; no one is above the law."

STEP DAUGHTER IN JAIL

A 1993-batch IPS officer, R Ramachandra Rao was previously in news when his step-daughter Ranya Rao was arrested by the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI) for smuggling 14.2 kg of gold from Dubai. Ranya is presently lodged in the Bengaluru Central Prison. Following Ranya's arrest, Rao was placed on suspension, which was revoked in August 2025.

Rao, a Guntur native, is due to retire on superannuation in July.

WHAT'S SHOWN IN VIRAL VIDEO?

The footage shows the DGP in compromising positions with women during duty hours inside his. The women are allegedly said to have visited Rao on multiple occasions and were dressed differently each time. The video reportedly captures scenes of kissing, groping, hugging and flirtatious behaviour. There have been no allegations of undue force or coercion till now, but the conduct of the top cop has drawn sharp criticism from all spheres.

NABIN REPLACES NADDA AS BJP NATIONAL PREZ

NEW DELHI

BJP leader Nitin Nabin has been elected unopposed as the national president of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and will formally take charge on January 20.

The transition ceremony will be held at 11.30 am at the party's headquarters and is expected to be attended by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Union Home Minister Amit Shah, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh and other senior party leaders.

In a press statement, BJP's National Returning Officer Dr K Laxman said the election process commenced after the party completed the election of 30 out of its 36 state presidents, exceeding the constitutional requirement of a minimum 50 per cent.

According to the statement, the notification for the schedule of events was issued, and the electoral roll was published on January 16, 2026. As per the announced schedule, the nomination process was conducted on January 19 between 2 pm and 4 pm.

He said a total of 37 sets of nomination papers were submitted in support of Nitin Nabin. Upon scrutiny, all nominations were found to be valid and in the prescribed format. Following the withdrawal period, he formally declared Nabin as the sole candidate proposed for the post of BJP national president.

At 45, Nabin's elevation is being seen as a generational shift in the party's leadership, coinciding with the BJP's 45th year since its formation

At 45, Nabin's elevation is being seen as a generational shift in the party's leadership, coinciding with the BJP's 45th year since its formation. Observers view his unopposed election as part of the party's broader strategy to encourage younger leadership while strengthening organisational cohesion ahead of upcoming electoral challenges.

The smooth and uncontested process, conducted under the supervision of the national returning officer, underscored the BJP's emphasis on internal consensus and procedural discipline throughout the stages of nomination, scrutiny and withdrawal.

Who's Nitin Nabin?

Nitin Nabin's journey from a leader of the Bhartiya Janata Yuva Morcha, the youth wing of the BJP, to the national president of the BJP has been a storybook rise. MLA at 26 and party president at 45, Nabin, who was elected unopposed on Monday, has become the party's youngest chief. Born in Patna, he is the son of late Nabin Kishore Prasad Sinha, a former BJP MLA. Following his father's untimely demise, Nabin entered active politics and gradually carved out his own space within the party.

Now a senior leader of the Bihar BJP, he established himself as a prominent figure in the state's political landscape. A five-term MLA from Bihar and the state's PWD Minister, he has, by and large, maintained a low profile. He has been a consistent representative of the Bankipur Assembly constituency in Patna. Known for his strong grassroots support, he won the Assembly seat in 2010, 2015, 2020 and 2025t — in addition to a by-poll victory in 2006. His latest win in the recently held Bihar Assembly polls saw him defeat his nearest rival by a margin of over 51,000 votes.

Ballot paper to replace EVMs in GBA polls

BENGALURU

Elections to city's five corporations under the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) will be held using ballot papers instead of Electronic Voting Machines (EVMs). The polls will be conducted after May 25 once the SSLC and PUC examinations are over, said State Election Commission (SEC).

Though the SEC did not give specific reasons for opting for ballot papers, it confirmed that EVNs will not be used in the upcoming civic polls.

The decision was revealed during a press meet held in connection with the GBA elections and the release of the draft voter list. State Election Commissioner GS Sangreshi and commissioners of all five city corporations were present.

Clarifying the decision, the SEC stated that it is an independent constitutional body and that the choice of using ballot papers is its own. It noted that there are no flaws in either EVMs or ballot papers, and the Supreme Court has not issued any directive prohibiting the use of ballot papers.

It further pointed out that district panchayat and taluk panchayat elections are regularly conducted using ballot papers, making the method well established.

NOTE THE POINTS

- GBA elections to be held via ballot paper.
- Draft voter list released with 88.91 lakh voters.
- Final voter list to be published on March 16.

Draft voter list released

Alongside this announcement, the draft voter list for the GBA area was officially published. As per the draft data, Greater Bengaluru has a total of 88,91,411 voters, including 45,69,193 men, 43,20,583 women, and 1,635 voters in the 'other' category.

15-day window to make changes

From Tuesday, voters can file objections or submit corrections related to the draft voter list. The objection period will remain open until February 3. During this time, Booth Level Officers will carry out door-to-door verification to cross-check voter details. Citizens can seek corrections if their names are missing, wrongly entered, or if there are errors in personal details. The final voter list is scheduled to be published on March 16.

Modi welcomed Al Nahyan at the Delhi airport with a hug and then they travelled together in the same vehicle to the prime minister's residence, where they held talks in the restricted as well as delegation-level formats.

"This has been a short, but extremely substantive visit," Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri said at a media briefing after the UAE leader concluded his nearly three-and-a-half-hour visit that came amid increasing tensions in the Middle East and trade disruptions caused by Washington's policy on tariffs.

The two sides decided to explore a partnership in advanced nuclear technologies, including development of large nuclear reactors and small modular reactors, as well as cooperation in advanced reactor systems and nuclear power plant operations, he said.

A long-term agreement for the supply of 0.5 million metric tonnes of LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) annually was concluded by the two sides.

The UAE is India's second-largest supplier of LNG to India after Qatar.

BOTH UNFAIR AND UNJUSTIFIED

'India 'selectively targeted' on Russia-Ukraine war'

NEW DELHI

External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar on Monday criticised what he described as the selective targeting of India over its position on the Russia-Ukraine war.

"In the recent past, both in New York last September and in Paris this January, I have candidly shared our views on the Ukraine conflict and its implications. While doing so, I have also repeatedly underlined that the selective targeting of India is both unfair and unjustified. I do so again today," Jaishankar said.

The External Affairs Minister was delivering opening remarks during delegation-level talks with visiting Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs of Poland, Radoslaw Sikorski, in New Delhi.

The meeting between the two ministers comes at a time when the world is witnessing significant "global churn", and Jaishankar underlined the need for closer engagement between India and Poland.

Responding to Jaishankar's remarks on tariffs, his Polish counterpart Sikoski said the tariffs imposed by the United States are leading to global trade turbulence. He also noted India's seriousness in expanding relations with Europe, which has also been targeted by the US administration of President Donald Trump.

I also completely agree with you on the unfairness of selective targeting, by tariffs. And we in Europe know something about that. Also, we fear that this is progressing to a global trade turbulence.

—Radoslaw Sikorski, Poland FM

"I also completely agree with you on the unfairness of selective targeting, by tariffs. And we in Europe know something about that. Also, we fear that this is progressing to a global trade turbulence. We are hoping that India will continue to stay engaged in Europe. We've noticed that you are establishing embassies everywhere in Europe, which means that you are serious about relations with the European Union," Sikoski said.

VRS Plea Does Not Guarantee Approval, High Court Rules

Voluntary retirement application alone gives no enforceable right to exit service: HC

BENGALURU

Mere submission of an application seeking voluntary retirement does not automatically entitle an employee to be relieved from service, the Karnataka High Court has held, while dismissing the appeal of a Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) driver who was removed from service for repeated unauthorised absence.

A Division Bench comprising Justices Anu Sivaraman and Vijayakumar A. Patil upheld a September 2022 single-judge order that had set aside a labour court directive asking KSRTC to consider the employee's voluntary retirement application. The Bench observed that the labour court had erred in interfering with the dismissal despite finding the domestic inquiry to be fair and the charges proved.

the years, he was repeatedly penalised for unauthorised absence. In 2010, KSRTC dismissed him from service, but the labour court in 2011 set aside the dismissal and ordered his reinstatement, while imposing a penalty of reduction of four increments with cumulative effect.

However, even after being reinstated, Srinivas again remained unauthorisedly absent from January 18, 2013. Following a disciplinary inquiry, KSRTC removed him from service on July 10, 2015, after the charges were proved.

Srinivas once again approached the labour court. While the labour court held that the inquiry was fair and proper, it nevertheless set aside the dismissal and directed KSRTC to consider his application for voluntary retirement, which he claimed to have submitted during the inquiry proceedings. Aggrieved, KSRTC moved the High Court.

Allowing the corporation's writ petition, the single judge noted that Srinivas had been given a second opportunity earlier but still continued to remain absent from January 18 to October 7, 2013. Given his past record and the fact that this was his second dismissal, the court held that the labour court could not have interfered with the punishment once it had upheld the inquiry and found the absence unjustified.

Dismissing Srinivas' appeal, the Division Bench said the labour court had set aside the dismissal solely on the ground that the employee had applied under the voluntary retirement scheme, which was legally unsustainable. The Bench noted that Srinivas failed to prove that he had submitted proper leave applications supported by medical certificates. The labour court had also disregarded the documents relied upon to justify his absence, as only a photocopy of a medical certificate was produced and not marked in evidence.

The court further observed that if the absence was indeed on medical grounds, there was no explanation for failing to inform the employer. Apart from a bald claim under Section 47 of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, there was no material to show that he had sought lighter duties.

In cases of continuous unauthorised absence, the labour court should not have ordered reinstatement or directed consideration of voluntary retirement, the Bench held, dismissing the writ appeal.

Will Relax Compliance Norms, Minister Tells Private Schools

BENGALURU

State Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa on Monday assured private school managements that the government would significantly relax compliance norms required for renewal of school recognition, including building and fire safety parameters, to reduce harassment and simplify procedures.

Addressing the 'Vision Mission' education conference organised by the Associated Managements of English Medium Schools in Karnataka (KAMS), the Minister said the number of mandatory compliance conditions had already been reduced from 65 to around 30, and efforts were underway to bring them down further to nearly 25.

"The aim is to simplify the process so that you don't have to come to our offices at all. If I come across any kind of harassment by officials, I will not hesitate to punish them," Bangarappa said, reassuring school managements of transparent and streamlined governance.

He added that compliance norms must evolve with changing conditions and modern methods of learning and teaching, and that rigid rules framed decades ago needed review to suit contemporary educational realities.

During the interaction, Legislative Council member D.S. Puttannaiah urged the government to reduce what he described as excessive "interference" by departmental officials, particularly Block Education Officers (BEOs). "Once permission is granted, why should officials continue to bother schools?" he asked, also pointing out that institutions were required to submit extensive documentation to bodies such as the Karnataka State Commission for Protection of Child Rights (KSCPCR).

Responding to the concerns, the Minister said that while the government was keen to ease genuine difficulties faced by private schools, departments functioning under their respective legal mandates could not be entirely bypassed. He informed the gathering that a House committee headed by Puttannaiah had been constituted to examine challenges faced by private schools, particularly in producing old records, building plans, and approvals sought during renewal of recognition.

Private school representatives urged Minister Madhu Bangarappa to introduce two options for mathematics for SSLC students, similar to the CBSE system. CBSE offers students a choice between standard and basic mathematics in Class 10. KAMS General Secretary D. Shashi Kumar said extending a similar option to state board students would help reduce fear of mathematics, improve learning outcomes, and enable students to score better in SSLC examinations.

Bangarappa also reflected on the initial challenges of holding the education portfolio. "There is a saying that if a politician's career has to be ruined, they should be made education minister. I don't believe in that," he remarked, highlighting several reforms initiated under his tenure.

Among the key measures, he cited the introduction of webcasting during examinations to improve transparency, conducting three sets of SSLC examinations to reduce pressure on students, lowering the pass mark to 33 per cent, and the decision not to charge examination fees for the second and third SSLC attempts.

The Minister said the government remained committed to balancing regulatory oversight with academic freedom, while ensuring student welfare and institutional accountability.

Data Shows 3% Decline in Cervical Cancer Cases in Four Years

BENGALURU

Hospital-based cancer registry data from the state-run Kidwai Memorial Institute of Oncology (KMIO) indicates a gradual decline in the burden of cervical cancer over the past four years. KMIO, one of the busiest cancer treatment centres in Bengaluru, has recorded a steady fall in the proportion of cervical cancer cases among all female cancers.

Dr T. Naveen, Director of KMIO, said the percentage share of cervical cancer dropped from 19.3% in 2021 to 16.2% in 2025. According to the KMIO Hospital-Based Cancer Registry, 1,076 cervical cancer cases were recorded in 2024 out of a total of 7,023 cancer cases in women. In 2025, the number declined to 929 cases among 5,742 female cancer patients.

While treatment in some 2025 cases is still ongoing and final outcomes are yet to be fully documented, experts say the overall trend aligns with long-term population-based registry data showing a decline in cervical cancer burden. Dr Naveen attributed this improvement to several government-led initiatives focused on female education, maternal and child health, family planning, and women's empowerment. These measures have contributed to a higher age at marriage and first pregnancy, along with reduced parity, all of which lower the risk of persistent Human Papillomavirus (HPV) infection — the primary cause of cervical cancer.

However, oncologists cautioned against complacency, pointing out that cervical cancer screening coverage in India remains extremely low. Less than 2% of women undergo regular screening, leaving a significant gap in early detection. Doctors practising in private healthcare settings also noted fluctuations in cervical cancer trends across the country.

Dr Shruthi Shivdas, Consultant in Gynaecological Oncology at Cytecare Hospitals, said that while age-standardised incidence and mortality rates for cervical cancer have declined in India, the absolute number of new cases and deaths continues to rise. "Absolute numbers cannot be interpreted in isolation. India's population is growing, women are living longer, and reporting has improved due to increased screening and the expansion of cancer registries," she said.

Globally, cervical cancer is typically diagnosed between 35 and 65 years of age. In India, however, delayed diagnosis remains common due to low awareness, highlighting the urgent need to scale up screening and HPV vaccination programmes nationwide.

Woman, 8-Yr-Old on Way to School Mowed Down by Bus

BENGALURU

A routine morning walk to school turned tragic in Vivek Nagar on Monday when a woman and her eight-year-old son were killed after being run over by a college bus near the Vivek Nagar bus stop on Srinivagilu Main Road.

The deceased have been identified as Sangeetha (37) and her son Partha. According to police, the accident occurred between 6.45 am and 6.50 am as Sangeetha was walking her son to school. While the duo were crossing the road, a bus belonging to Jain (Deemed-to-be) University's Global Campus in Kanakapura struck them, leaving both with fatal injuries. They died on the spot.

Ashok Nagar traffic police rushed to the scene soon after receiving an alert. The bus driver abandoned the vehicle and fled immediately after the accident. Police suspect the driver panicked and escaped fearing backlash from local residents who began gathering at the spot. A search has been launched to trace and apprehend him.

A senior police officer said the bus was ferrying lecturers and teaching staff at the time of the incident. Preliminary investigations suggest that the driver was attempting a U-turn and failed to notice the mother and child crossing the road, resulting in the fatal collision.

An eyewitness, Teressa, who lives in a makeshift shed along the footpath, said she saw Sangeetha and Partha crossing the road moments before the bus hit them. "The impact was severe. They both collapsed and did not move. The driver ran away before people could assemble," she said, adding that the mother followed the same routine every morning, taking her son to school at around the same time.

DL Cancellation Even for Speeding: ACP Nikitha

BENGALURU

Emphasising that driving demands patience, discipline and sustained concentration, Assistant Commissioner of Police (ACP) Nikitha of the Vijayanagara Traffic Division warned that even offences such as speeding could lead to cancellation of driving licences under amended traffic laws.

She was speaking after inaugurating the Sadak Suraksha Jeevan Raksha programme organised by LV Travels in association with the State Transport Department as part of Road Safety Week. ACP Nikitha said many potential accidents could be prevented if motorists strictly adhered to traffic rules. "Driving is a serious responsibility. A moment's negligence can cost lives," she noted.

Referring to recent enforcement measures, she said cases were being registered against drunk drivers and their licences cancelled. Under the amended Motor Vehicles Act, licences can also be cancelled for signal jumping, using mobile phones while driving, and over-speeding. "These violations are no longer treated lightly," she added.

Regional Transport Officer (RTO) Praveen highlighted the gravity of road safety issues, stating that over 4.80 lakh accident cases were registered across the country in 2023, resulting in 1,72,890 deaths. Haste, carelessness and violation of traffic rules were the primary causes of road accidents, he said.

Get Ready for Local Body Polls: Mukhyamantri Chandru

BENGALURU

With elections to local bodies scheduled in Karnataka in 2026, Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) workers must gear up and intensify their fight to keep corruption out of governance, said Mukhyamantri Chandru, president of the party's state unit.

Addressing the party's state executive meeting, Chandru said elections to municipal corporations, district and taluk panchayats, and other urban local bodies had not been conducted on time. He alleged that the Congress, BJP and JD(S), which have ruled the state at different times, had dealt a severe blow to the constitutional principle of decentralisation. "Political power should reach the hands of honest people," he said.

Chandru noted that ordinary citizens were increasingly reluctant to enter politics, creating a serious challenge for democracy. In this context, he said, the Aam Aadmi Party had created an environment that encouraged honest and committed individuals to step into electoral politics. "AAP offers a platform for clean politics and an opportunity to protect democratic values," he added.

National Organising Secretary Prithvi Reddy said the AAP had grown strongly in states such as Uttar Pradesh, Goa and Gujarat, and was now focusing on strengthening its organisational base in Karnataka.

Canara Bank Defrauded of ₹3 Cr; Police Hunt Absconding Branch Manager

BENGALURU

The police have constituted a special team to trace senior bank manager N. Raghu, who allegedly fled after defrauding Canara Bank's Malleshwaram branch of ₹3.11 crore by sanctioning fictitious gold loans.

A case has been registered based on a complaint filed by Kabindra Kumar Sahu, Assistant General Manager, Regional Office, Canara Bank. According to the police, Raghu went missing soon after the fraud came to light during an internal audit.

Investigations revealed that the accused had allegedly taken gold loans in the names of more than 40 customers and transferred the sanctioned amounts to his own account. Police said Raghu gained the trust of customers by citing personal problems and convincing them to allow loans to be taken in their names. He reportedly claimed that he would mortgage his own gold to avail the loans. Believing him, customers shared their bank account details, Aadhaar cards and OTPs.

PROTECTING GOVERNMENT PROPERTY

90,000 Government Plots Flagged as Encroached in 2 Yrs

BENGALURU

In a major technology-driven effort to safeguard public land, the Revenue Department has verified over 13.9 lakh government land parcels across Karnataka under the Land Beat digital surveillance programme over the past two years, flagging encroachments on around 90,000 plots.

Launched to strengthen monitoring and prevent misuse of state assets, the initiative gathered significant momentum in 2024. Verification numbers rose sharply from just 27,380 parcels in March 2024 to over 10.7 lakh by July, crossing the 13-lakh mark by September. As of December 24, 2025, a total of 13,94,519 land parcels had been physically verified.

Officials said that while about 90,000 plots were clearly marked as encroached, a much larger number showed varying degrees of intrusion and irregularities, necessitating further surveys and classification. The findings, they said, highlight the scale of the challenge and the urgent need for a system-driven overhaul of land governance, which directly impacts livelihoods, family assets, and public infrastructure.

Under the Land Beat programme, village accountants and Village Administrative Officers (VAOs) carried out on-ground verification using geo-fenced mobile applications. The app required officers to physically visit each parcel, walk its boundaries, and upload photographs and short videos. Data entry from offices was blocked, ensuring that verification was conducted strictly on the field.

Rajendra Kumar Kataria, Principal Secretary, Revenue Department, said the system was designed to introduce discipline through digital checks and balances, reducing discretion in routine processes that earlier depended heavily on manual intervention. "Previously, due to work pressure and multiple responsibilities, many officers lost track of monitoring these lands. That is one of the reasons for bringing in this system," he said.

The department clarified that the exercise was not aimed at revenue collection but focused on land resource management.

BJP STAGES PROTEST IN KALABURAGI AGAINST GOVT

BJP workers staged a protest in Kalaburagi, accusing the government of misgovernance and neglecting people's pressing concerns

KALABURAGI

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) on Monday staged a protest in Kalaburagi, targeting the state government over what it described as administrative failure and neglect of key public issues. The demonstration, held at prominent locations in the city, saw the participation of party leaders, workers, and supporters, who raised slogans against the government and demanded immediate corrective measures.

According to BJP leaders, the protest was organised to draw attention to rising prices of essential commodities, unemployment, alleged corruption, and what they termed as the government's inability to ensure effective governance. Party workers carrying BJP flags and placards marched through parts of the city, accusing the ruling administration of failing to fulfil promises made to the people during elections.

Addressing the gathering, local BJP leaders said the government had pushed citizens into hardship due to price rise and poor implementation of welfare schemes. They alleged that common people, including farmers, labourers, and the middle class, were bearing the brunt of what they called anti-people policies. The speakers also criticised the state leadership for ignoring the concerns of backward regions like Kalaburagi, claiming that development works had slowed down significantly.

The protestors demanded that the government take immediate steps to control inflation, create employment opportunities for youth, and ensure transparency in administration. They also called for better infrastructure development, uninterrupted power supply, and improved basic amenities in urban and rural areas of the district.

Police personnel were deployed in adequate numbers to maintain law and order during the protest. Traffic movement was briefly affected in some areas as demonstrators assembled and raised slogans, but the situation remained peaceful. Officials said no untoward incidents were reported, and the protest concluded without any major disruption.

Speaking to the media, BJP representatives said similar protests would be organised across the state if the government failed to respond to public grievances. They maintained that the party would continue to raise people's issues both on the streets and in legislative forums. Residents who witnessed the protest expressed mixed reactions.

KALABURAGI

As part of his continued outreach to citizens, Basavaraj Mattimood, the legislator from Kalaburagi, held a Janaspandana (public grievance redressal) programme at his residence on Monday. The initiative aimed to provide residents with a direct platform to voice their concerns and seek timely solutions to long-pending issues.

From early morning, people from various parts of the city and nearby areas gathered at the MLA's residence, carrying petitions related to civic amenities, housing, roads, drinking water supply, sanitation, pensions, and other welfare schemes. Many also raised personal issues such as land disputes, revenue-related problems, and delays in receiving government benefits.

During the interaction, Mattimood patiently listened to each complaint and assured the public that genuine grievances would be addressed on priority. He instructed concerned officials over the phone and through written notes to take immediate action wherever possible, while seeking detailed reports on more complex matters. The MLA emphasised that Janaspandana was meant to bridge the gap between the administration and the people, ensuring that citizens did not have to run from office to office for basic services.

Kalaburagi MLA Basavaraj Mattimood conducted a Janaspandana programme at his residence, listening directly to citizens' grievances

Addressing the gathering, Mattimood said public representatives have a responsibility to remain accessible to the people at all times. Democracy becomes meaningful only when people's voices are heard and acted upon. Programmes like Janaspandana help us understand grassroots issues directly, he said. He added that such interactions also help identify systemic problems that require long-term solutions.

Several citizens expressed satisfaction over the opportunity to meet the MLA personally and explain their problems without intermediaries. Some said that issues which had remained unresolved for months were finally receiving attention through the programme.

Local party workers and supporters assisted in coordinating the programme, registering complaints, and guiding visitors. Adequate arrangements were made to ensure orderly conduct and smooth interaction.

The Janaspandana programme at the MLA's residence reflects a growing emphasis on participatory governance in Kalaburagi. Mattimood said similar grievance redressal interactions would be organised regularly to ensure continuous engagement with the public and effective monitoring of development works and welfare implementation across the constituency.

Illegal gambling was allegedly conducted openly under tents during a local fair, triggering anger and concern among citizens

Brazen Gambling Under Tents at Local Fair Sparks Outrage

BHALKI

Allegations of open and brazen gambling under tents during a local fair have sparked widespread outrage among residents and social activists, raising serious questions about law enforcement and public safety. According to local sources, gambling activities were carried out rajāroṣavāgi (with complete audacity) by setting up tents at the fairground, attracting crowds and operating without fear of action.

Residents alleged that card games and betting activities continued openly throughout the fair, even as families, women, and children visited the venue for cultural and religious events. Locals said the gambling dens were set up close to stalls and entertainment areas, creating an unhealthy atmosphere and undermining the very purpose of the fair, which is meant to promote tradition, devotion, and community bonding.

Concerned citizens claimed that despite repeated complaints, the illegal activities continued uninterrupted. Some alleged that organisers or influential individuals may have extended protection to the gambling operators, allowing them to function openly. It is shocking that such activities are allowed at a public fair. This sends a wrong message to youth and spoils social values, said a senior resident.

Social organisations and elders of the village condemned the incident and demanded immediate action against those involved. They said gambling not only leads to financial ruin of individuals but also contributes to crimes, domestic disputes, and social unrest. Several residents alleged that some people lost significant amounts of money during the fair, leading to tension in families.

There were also concerns about the absence or inaction of authorities during the event. Locals questioned why police personnel deployed for crowd control and security failed to curb the gambling activities. If this continues unchecked, fairs and jatras will turn into hubs for illegal activities, a protestor warned.

Following public outrage, demands have grown for a thorough inquiry into how gambling was allowed to operate so openly. Residents have urged the administration to identify and book organisers, tent owners, and gamblers under relevant sections of the law.

Mahayogi Vemana's Ideals of Human Values Highlighted at 614th Jayanti Celebration

BIDAR

The 614th Jayanti of Mahayogi Vemana was observed with reverence in Bidar, with scholars and speakers highlighting his enduring contribution to Indian philosophical thought and social reform. The programme emphasised Vemana's continued relevance in contemporary society, particularly his stress on human values, rational thinking, and ethical living.

Addressing the gathering, Rahim Khan said Mahayogi Vemana was a renowned philosopher, social reformer, and poet of South India who conveyed profound philosophical ideas in simple and accessible language. Through his vachanas, Vemana strongly opposed ignorance, superstition, and social inequality, while advocating truth, morality, self-knowledge, and human dignity as the true foundations of life.

Khan noted that Vemana's teachings remain a guiding light for society even today. His thoughts, he said, are universal and timeless, encouraging self-reflection, ethical conduct, and social harmony. According to Vemana's philosophy, personal purity and collective welfare together define true yogic living, making his message relevant across generations.

The programme was organised at the Hema Vemana Community Hall in the Amalapur area of Bidar by the district administration, Zilla Panchayat, and the Department of Kannada and Culture. The event was formally inaugurated with the offering of floral tributes to Vemana's portrait.

Speakers recalled that Mahayogi Vemana rejected divisions based on caste, religion, and class, and consistently advocated equality and a just social order.

His poetry and philosophical ideas, they said, continue to inspire society by promoting rationalism, moral courage, and social responsibility. Vemana's ideology was described as particularly relevant for today's youth, encouraging values-based living and ethical discipline.

Former educationist Dr Shivarajappa Huggi Patil delivered a special lecture on Vemana's life and philosophy, describing his journey from personal struggles to spiritual awakening as deeply inspirational.

Former Minister Bhimanna Khandre's Death Mourned

BIDAR

The demise of former minister Bhimanna Khandre has evoked widespread grief across Bidar, with leaders from various political parties, social organisations, and educational institutions paying rich tributes to his life and legacy. Several prominent personalities recalled his contribution to public life and his role in strengthening social harmony in the Kalyana Karnataka region. Among those who expressed deep sorrow was Muhammad Asifuddin, chairman of the Wisdom Group of Institutions, who remembered Khandre as a symbol of principled politics and communal unity.

In a condolence message issued on Monday, Asifuddin said Bhimanna Khandre stood as a strong embodiment of Hindu–Muslim unity and was widely respected across communities. He described the veteran leader as a straightforward, soft-spoken, and sincere individual whose public life reflected integrity, simplicity, and an unwavering commitment to social harmony. Khandre's life, he said, served as an inspiring example of inclusive leadership and ethical politics.

Recalling Khandre's long and distinguished political career, Asifuddin noted that the former minister held several important positions and worked tirelessly for the development of Bidar district and the state. His efforts, he said, left a lasting impact on infrastructure development, social welfare initiatives, and communal amity in the region. Khandre also served as the national president of the Akhil Bharat Veerashaiva Lingayat Mahasabha, where he played a key role in strengthening organisational unity and promoting social reform.

GANDHI GRAM PROTEST

Protest Over Alleged Discrimination in Gandhi Gram Award Selection

BIDAR

Alleging discrimination in the selection process for the prestigious Gandhi Gram Award, residents of Markhal village staged a dharna and satyagraha in front of the Zilla Panchayat office in Bidar on Monday. The protestors accused the authorities of unfairly ignoring their village despite its eligibility and achievements under various development and cleanliness parameters.

According to the villagers, Markhal has consistently performed well in sanitation, drinking water management, greenery initiatives, and implementation of government welfare schemes, making it a strong contender for the Gandhi Gram Award. However, they alleged that their village was sidelined due to political influence and favouritism in the final selection process.

Raising slogans and holding placards, the protestors demanded transparency and accountability from the district administration. They said the Gandhi Gram Award, which is meant to encourage Gandhian values such as cleanliness, self-reliance, harmony, and participatory governance at the village level, should be awarded purely on merit rather than external considerations.

Addressing the gathering, village elders and local leaders claimed that Markhal had fulfilled all the criteria laid down for the award, including effective solid and liquid waste management, active gram sabha participation, and successful implementation of rural development programmes. If villages that genuinely work for development are ignored, it discourages grassroots efforts, one protestor said.

The protestors submitted a memorandum to the district authorities, urging them to conduct a re-evaluation of the selection process. They also demanded that detailed score sheets and evaluation reports of shortlisted villages be made public to ensure transparency. Some protestors warned that they would intensify their agitation if corrective action was not taken.

Officials from the Zilla Panchayat met a delegation of villagers and assured them that their grievances would be examined. They said the award selection followed established guidelines and involved multiple levels of assessment, but added that the complaints raised by Markhal residents would be forwarded to higher authorities for review.

The zoo has about 170 spotted deer, all closely monitored. Officials are protecting them, sending samples for testing, and providing ongoing treatment, a forest officer said

Four spotted deer die at Indira Priyadarshini Zoo

DAVANAGERE

Four spotted deer have died mysteriously at the Indira Priyadarshini Zoo near Anagodu village, creating concern among forest officials and visitors.

The deaths happened over the last three days, and doctors believe an infectious disease may be the reason.

Veterinary experts said the animals may have been affected by hemorrhagic septicemia, a dangerous disease that spreads quickly among cattle and wild animals. After the deaths, the Forest Department rushed doctors to the zoo to check all the animals and begin preventive treatment. Medicines and vaccines are being given to stop the disease from spreading to other deer.

There are about 170 spotted deer in the zoo, and officials said all of them are being closely watched. "We are taking every step to protect the animals. Samples have been sent for testing, and treatment is going on," a forest officer said.

To keep the situation under control, the zoo has temporarily restricted public entry. Visitors are not being allowed near the deer enclosure until the health check is completed. Officials said this step is needed to avoid stress to the animals and reduce the risk of infection.

Local residents and animal lovers have expressed worry over the sudden deaths and have asked the department to act quickly. The Forest Department assured that they will do everything possible to save the remaining deer and promised full support.

Channabasappa said the government is calling the session in great hurry, and this shows that a change of leadership may be coming soon. "Looking at the way this session is being called, I feel this will be Siddaramaiah's last session as Chief Minister. A new Chief Minister may take charge after this," he said.

Education Min Madhu Bangarappa honored with Shikshan Bangara

SHIVAMOGGA

Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa was honoured with the title "Shikshan Bangara Madhu Bangarappa" at a state level education conference held at Palace Grounds in Bengaluru. The programme was organised by the Karnataka State Government Senior and Non Graduate Primary School Headmasters' Association along with several education groups. Teachers and leaders praised her for her work to improve government schools and make learning easier for children.

Speakers recalled how her father, former Chief Minister S. Bangarappa, believed that education alone could change poor families. He once started a one rupee a day scheme so that children would stay in school instead of working with their parents. Thirty years later, his daughter is leading the School Education and Literacy Department with the same spirit, they said.

Under Madhu Bangarappa, many friendly reforms were introduced. Karnataka Public Schools were opened in rural areas so that village children can get quality education close to home. A three exam system was brought in to reduce stress. Webcasting was started in exam centres to keep exams fair and transparent. The pass marks for SSLC and PUC were reduced from 35 to 33 percent to help more students move ahead.

She has also focused on good food, clean classrooms and basic facilities for children from poor, backward and minority families. While receiving the honour, Madhu Bangarappa said the process to renew private school recognition has been made simple and will be made even easier. She promised that her department will continue to work for students, teachers and parents with care and commitment. Leaders present said her efforts are shaping a brighter future today.

Lakkundi Workers Seek Fair Wages During Excavation

GADAG

Labourers working at the historic Lakkundi excavation site stopped work on Monday morning to demand a fair wage.

The workers said they are being paid only Rs 374 under the employment guarantee scheme, even though they work long hours in the hot sun. Because of the protest, the excavation that was to begin at 8 am started late.

The labourers said the present wage is too low for the hard work they do every day. "We work nearly ten hours, digging and lifting heavy soil, but we are paid for only four hours. This is not fair," a worker said. They demanded a minimum wage of Rs 600 per day so that they can support their families.

Many women workers also joined the protest. They said that in other daily wage jobs, they earn between Rs 500 and Rs 600 in much less time. "Here we work longer, but we get less money. If the wages are not increased, we will not continue the work," another worker said.

Officials from the Archaeological Department spoke to the labourers and promised to take their demand to senior officers. After this assurance, the workers agreed to resume the excavation.

The excavation began after a gold treasure was found recently in Lakkundi village. About 466 grams of gold ornaments and some copper items were handed over to the government. Experts believe the treasure is nearly 300 years old.

Absconding accused held in extortion case

MANGALURU

The Mangaluru East Police Station's warrant enforcement team arrested Naveen Sequera (52), a resident of Thokkottu Chambugudde, Permannur Post, who had been absconding after a long-pending extortion case verdict.

Naveen was originally charged under Section 392 IPC in 2011-12 (Crime No. 195/2011). In 2015, the court found him guilty and sentenced him to three years of rigorous imprisonment along with a fine of Rs. 5,000. Naveen had later filed a criminal writ petition in the High Court challenging the verdict.

The High Court reduced his sentence to one year of simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 15,000, ordering him to serve it by 2022. When he failed to appear, the court reverted to the original District Court order of three years' rigorous imprisonment.

After the latest verdict, Naveen absconded, prompting the court to issue an arrest warrant. Acting on credible information, ASI Machendranath Jogi, Head Constable Abhishek, and H.C. Narappa KB located Naveen at a bar in Honnakatte, Surathkal, on January 14 and took him into custody.

He was immediately produced before the court, which confirmed the earlier sentence of three years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000. Police said the arrest demonstrates their commitment to enforcing court orders and ensuring accountability for past crimes.

The case has attracted public attention due to the long gap between the crime, verdict, and eventual arrest.

Officials said a three to four year old tigress was found on Sunday in the Kathpora area of the Bagori Western Range. Park Director Sonali Ghosh formed a committee for post mortem and disposal as per NTCA rules. Early findings suggest the tigress died due to infighting. A young male tiger was found dead on January 14.

Modi welcomes 'brother' Zayed with hug, greetings

The visit comes at a time of heightened tensions in West Asia; strained Iran-US relations, continued instability in Gaza, and unresolved Yemen conflict

Prime Minister Narendra Modi received Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan at the Delhi Airport on Monday, marking the start of the UAE President's official visit to India.

The two leaders shared a warm hug, exchanged greetings, and travelled together in the same car while leaving the airport.

Prime Minister Modi later described the UAE leader as his brother in a post on social media platform X. He said the visit showed the importance Sheikh Mohamed places on strengthening the close friendship between India and the UAE. Photographs shared by the Prime Minister showed both leaders sitting together in a car and greeting each other warmly.

The Ministry of External Affairs said the visit was held at the invitation of Prime Minister Modi and builds on recent high level exchanges. Officials noted that several senior UAE leaders visited India in recent months, adding momentum to bilateral ties. These included the September 2024 visit of Abu Dhabi Crown Prince Sheikh Khaled bin Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan. Another key visit was by Dubai Crown Prince and UAE Defence Minister Sheikh Hamdan bin Mohammed in April 2025.

The UAE President's visit comes amid rising tensions in West Asia, including instability in Gaza and unresolved regional conflicts. International attention is also focused on expected new diplomatic efforts related to the Gaza situation. This is Sheikh Mohamed's third official visit to India as President and his fifth visit overall in the past decade. The visit highlights sustained high level engagement and the growing strategic partnership between New Delhi.

Defamation case: Rahul skips court, hearing deferred

SULTANPUR

The court fixed February 20 as the next date for further proceedings and made it clear that his presence would be required on that day

Congress leader and Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi did not appear before the MP MLA court in Sultanpur on Monday in a defamation case, leading the court to defer proceedings.

Gandhi, the sitting MP from Raebareli, was scheduled to record his statement before the court. However, his counsel Kashi Prasad Shukla informed the judge that the Congress leader was in Kerala due to a prior commitment.

Taking note of the submission, MP MLA court judge Shubham Verma granted Gandhi a final opportunity to appear in person. The court fixed February 20 as the next date for further proceedings and made it clear that his presence would be required on that day. Shukla later told reporters that Gandhi was likely to attend the hearing on the next scheduled date.

The defamation case was filed in October 2018 by local BJP worker Vijay Mishra from Hanumanganj in Sultanpur district. Mishra alleged that during election campaigning in Karnataka in August 2018, Gandhi made objectionable remarks against then BJP president Amit Shah. The case has been pending for several years, with multiple hearings and witness examinations.

In December 2023, the court issued a warrant against Gandhi after he failed to appear. He later surrendered before the court on February 20, 2024, and was granted bail on two bonds of Rs 25,000 each. On July 26, 2024, Gandhi recorded his statement, denied the allegations, and termed the case politically motivated.

Following his statement, the court directed the complainant to present evidence. Witness Ram Chandra Dubey was examined earlier this month and cross examined by the defence. On the next date, Gandhi must appear.

Mid-day meal cooks protest over meagre daily wage

RAIPUR

Mid-day meal cooks in Chhattisgarh continue an indefinite protest, demanding fair wages to survive rising living costs.

It has been 22 days since thousands of cooks, mostly women, gathered in Raipur seeking a wage hike. They currently receive only Rs 66 per day for preparing meals under the mid-day meal scheme. Nearly 95 per cent of protesters are women from rural and tribal areas. They say their work keeps schools running while their families struggle to survive.

The protest is led by the Chhattisgarh School Madhyanh Bhojan Rasoiya Sanyukta Sangh. Many cooks travelled long distances to join the agitation in the state capital. Savita Manikpuri, a cook since 2011, said governments change but their condition never improves. She said her children's education suffers as she cannot afford higher studies.

Association secretary Meghraj Baghel said about 87,000 cooks work under the scheme statewide. Since December 29, they have been on strike, affecting meal services in several schools. On average, 6,000 to 7,000 cooks protest daily in rotating batches. Baghel said wages rose from Rs 15 to only Rs 66 in three decades. They demand payment at collector rates of around Rs 440 per day. He compared wages with other states where cooks earn much more monthly.

The cooks fear losing their jobs when schools merge or enrolment drops. Bhuneshwari Markam said they work over five hours daily, not two. Many suffer health issues from firewood smoke. Protesters vowed to continue until demands are met. Congress leader Dipak Baij backed them, while officials remained unavailable.

ED summons YSRCP MP over AP liquor scam

HYDERABAD : The Enforcement Directorate (ED) has summoned YSRCP MP P V Midhun Reddy on January 23 for questioning in a money-laundering case linked to a Rs 3,500-crore liquor scam in Andhra Pradesh, officials said on Monday. The alleged irregularities took place during the previous YSRCP government. His statement will be recorded under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA). The 48-year-old Rajampet MP was earlier named as an accused and arrested by the Andhra Pradesh Police special investigation team (SIT) in July 2025, but is currently out on bail. The ED has also summoned former MP Vijayasai Reddy on January 22 to provide details regarding the liquor policy implemented between 2019 and 2024. Vijayasai Reddy has also been named in the FIR filed by the SIT. The SIT alleged that illicit funds were routed through Reddy to former Chief Minister Y S Jagan Mohan Reddy, who claims the case is politically motivated. The federal agency registered a PMLA case in September 2025 based on the SIT complaint.

Shiv Sena will honour mandate for Mahayuti in BMC: Shinde

MUMBAI

Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde has confirmed that the Shiv Sena will honour the mandate for the BJP-led Mahayuti in the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation, sources said on Monday.

Following the recent civic polls, 29 newly-elected Shiv Sena corporators were shifted to a five-star hotel in Mumbai. Sources said the move is being unnecessarily exaggerated. The relocation is part of a training workshop for the new members, allowing Shinde to interact with them and outline expectations.

Speculation has arisen that Shinde wants the Shiv Sena to secure the BMC mayor's post for at least the first two-and-a-half years, as 2026 marks the birth centenary of party founder Bal Thackeray. However, Sena sources clarified that Shinde has not approached the BJP leadership about this, aware that the post is unlikely to be allotted to his party.

A close aide said Shiv Sainiks hope for a Sena mayor during the centenary year, but even public discussion of the issue is acceptable. Other important committees could still be secured for the party, the associate added.

Shinde, sources said, has no intention of violating the alliance's mandate. The BJP–Shiv Sena alliance won a narrow majority in the 227-member BMC, with 89 seats for the BJP and 29 for Shinde-led Sena. Sena (UBT) secured 65 seats, while ally MNS won six.

After meeting the newly-elected Shiv Sena members on Sunday, Shinde reaffirmed that Mumbai will have a Mahayuti mayor, underlining the alliance's commitment to its mandate and stability in civic governance.

GOVT REJECTS CONG CLAIMS ON VB-G RAM G SCHEME

NEW DELHI

Rural Development Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan on Monday accused Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Mallikarjun Kharge of spreading misinformation about the VB-G RAM G scheme, asserting that the new Act strengthens the Right to Work.

He said the opposition's claims that employment would be limited to certain panchayats are "lies."

Chouhan addressed Congress' nationwide campaign, MGNREGA Bachao Sangram, launched on January 10 against the repeal of the UPA-era MGNREGA. Congress demands withdrawal of VB-G RAM G and restoration of MGNREGA as a rights-based law with panchayat authority.

He said the new scheme provides 125 days of guaranteed work, up from 100 under MGNREGA, and adds provisions for unemployment allowances within 15 days.

"Instead of weakening the Right to Work, we have strengthened it on the ground," Chouhan said.

The minister highlighted that VB-G RAM G will be implemented across all panchayats, with no extra burden on states. Central funding will increase, while state contributions will focus on village infrastructure. He added that Rs 9 lakh crore has been spent under the new scheme, compared to Rs 2 lakh crore during the UPA regime.

Chouhan claimed that Congress' misinformation campaign undermines its credibility and stressed that VB-G RAM G is aimed at village development. He also clarified that MGNREGA will continue until VB-G RAM G is rolled out in the next six months.

The minister urged citizens and stakeholders to ignore "false claims" and emphasised that the government remains committed to providing employment, strengthening rural infrastructure, and protecting the Right to Work across India.

Kavitha plans political party with Kishor Telangana

HYDERABAD

Former CM K Chandrasekhar Rao's daughter, K Kavitha, is reportedly in discussions with election strategist Prashant Kishor to launch her proposed political party, Telangana Jagruthi, sources said on Monday. Kavitha, who heads the cultural organisation Telangana Jagruthi, met Kishor during his recent five-day visit to Hyderabad to discuss the party launch, political space in Telangana, and other related issues. Kishor is also the founder of the Bihar-based Jan Suraaj party.

Kavitha, a former MP and MLC, was suspended from the BRS in September 2025 after accusing her cousins and party leaders T Harish Rao and J Santosh Kumar of tarnishing her father KCR's image over the Kaleshwaram lift irrigation project. Following her suspension, she resigned from the Legislative Council, which was accepted earlier this month.

Since then, she has focused on public issues under Telangana Jagruthi. In December 2025, she accused both the BRS and ruling Congress of corruption and irregularities and announced her ambition to become Chief Minister to investigate alleged injustices since Telangana's formation in 2014.

Kavitha has confirmed that her political platform intends to contest the next assembly elections in the state. She has also criticised her father's party, calling the BRS Constitution a "joke" and distancing herself from certain unpopular decisions taken during the BRS rule. Her move marks a significant development in Telangana politics, signaling the rise of a new political platform led by a prominent regional leader with aspirations for state leadership and accountability in governance.

HEALTH ALERT

TN steps up Nipah virus vigil after cases in West Bengal

CHENNAI

Tamil Nadu has stepped up disease surveillance and hospital preparedness after two Nipah virus cases were confirmed in West Bengal, triggering a nationwide health alert. Acting on advisories from the Union government, the Directorate of Public Health and Preventive Medicine has asked all district, city and municipal health authorities to intensify monitoring across the State. Special focus has been placed on identifying cases of Acute Encephalitis Syndrome at an early stage.

Health officials have been instructed to closely observe all patients reporting fever with altered sensorium. Particular attention must be given to people who have recently travelled to West Bengal or had contact with individuals from affected areas. Such patients should be promptly evaluated for possible Nipah virus infection, officials said, adding that early identification is key to preventing spread.

Health Minister Ma Subramanian said on Monday that detailed guidelines and precautionary measures had already been circulated to all districts. District Health Officers were directed to activate enhanced surveillance systems immediately. Block medical officers at the primary healthcare level and heads of all government hospitals were also asked to stay alert and prepared to respond quickly to any suspected cases.

Director of Public Health A Somasundaram said strong preparedness at the field level is vital during health alerts. He urged intensified awareness efforts to inform healthcare workers and the public about prevention and control. He stressed the need for better surveillance, early detection, improved treatment, and strict infection control in all health facilities. The Directorate asked government and private hospitals to immediately report all Acute Encephalitis Syndrome cases to District Surveillance Units, noting timely reporting can prevent spread.

Leprosy-afflicted beggar turns moneylender

INDORE

In a surprising discovery during an anti-beggary drive, officials in Indore found a 50-year-old leprosy-afflicted man who owns three houses, three autorickshaws, and a chauffeur-driven car. Despite moving around on a wheeled board seeking alms, the man has been quietly lending money in Indore's famous Sarafa Bazaar. He reportedly earns significant daily interest from his lending business. Authorities were stunned to learn that a person appearing to be a beggar had amassed property worth several lakh rupees.

'Fiscal, regulatory aid can anchor India's rise as global space power'

ISA calls for enhanced fiscal, regulatory and structural support to position India among world's top three spacefaring nations

NEW DELHI

The Indian Space Association (ISpA) on Monday called for stronger fiscal, regulatory, and structural support to help India emerge as a top global space power.

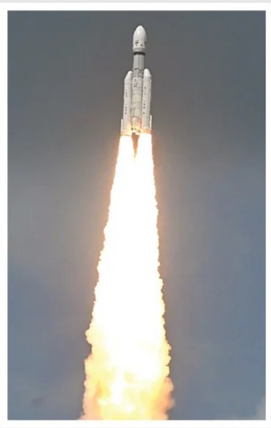
While the Space Policy 2023 allowed private sector participation, ISpA said the next step is to enhance domestic manufacturing, national security, high-value jobs, and global competitiveness, while ensuring secure access to strategic satellite and geospatial data.

The Association urged recognising the space sector as "critical infrastructure," which would enable infrastructure-grade financing, reduce capital costs by 2-3 per cent, and strengthen national resilience. ISpA highlighted that space underpins telecommunications, defence, navigation, finance, weather forecasting, disaster management, and governance.

Indian private players now have capabilities in satellites, launch systems, and ground infrastructure, but lack of assured government demand limits growth. ISpA recommended a formal procurement mandate, suggesting at least 50 per cent of government purchases of space-based services, hardware, and missions be sourced from Indian private entities.

The Association also suggested incentives including Production Linked Incentive schemes for satellites, launch vehicles, and space-grade components; five-year tax holidays for space manufacturing and services; 20-30 per cent R&D tax credits; and SEZ-like benefits for space tech parks and manufacturing clusters. Additional measures include duty-free imports, simplified foreign currency handling, employment-linked tax deductions, and concessional GST and customs duties on R&D equipment.

"India stands at a defining moment in its space journey. Recognising space as critical infrastructure and enabling private sector participation can shift the Government's role from provider to partner, anchoring India's rise as a global space leader," ISpA said.



KEY POINTS

- Recognize space as critical infrastructure
- Mandate 50% govt procurement from private firms
- Introduce PLI schemes and tax holidays

Trinamool workers tear voters' forms in Hooghly

KOLKATA

Chaos unfolded at the Sub-Divisional Officer (SDO) office in Hooghly district on Monday when a group of Trinamool Congress (TMC) workers, led by Chinsurah MLA Asit Majumdar, reportedly tore several Form-7 applications.

These forms are used to delete names of deceased or shifted voters from the draft electoral list. The incident occurred while claims and objections on the draft voters' list were being processed. While Majumdar denied witnessing his supporters destroying the forms, he claimed they were protesting against BJP activists submitting Form-7 applications on behalf of others.

The disruption led to scuffles between TMC and BJP workers, creating tense scenes at the office. Voters present at the venue criticized police for inaction, alleging that officers did not intervene to restore order. Majumdar questioned the deletion of 1.26 lakh names from the Hooghly Lok Sabha voters' list, accusing authorities of compromising democratic rights. BJP leaders alleged that the Trinamool Congress has long resisted Form-7 submissions to keep names of deceased or shifted voters in the electoral list, potentially enabling false voting.

Bombay HC keeps Ambernath alliance flip-flops in abeyance

MUMBAI

The Bombay High Court on Monday criticised the "globe-trotting" behaviour of certain NCP members in Ambernath while keeping the Thane district collector's orders on civic alliances in abeyance. The court's remarks came during a hearing on disputes arising from the December 20 Ambernath Municipal Council elections.

A bench of Justices Ravindra Ghuge and Abhay Mantri directed the collector to hear all parties — BJP, Congress, NCP, and Shiv Sena — and pass an order regarding recognition of alliances. The court referred to four NCP candidates who initially joined the BJP-Congress-backed Ambernath Vikas Aghadi (AVA) but later shifted support to Shiv Sena, terming their actions "globe-trotting." Justice Ghuge quipped, "Today, these four persons are with him (Eknath Shinde), yesterday with someone else. What if tomorrow they go with someone else?"

In the election, Shiv Sena emerged as the single-largest party with 27 of 60 seats, while BJP won 14, Congress 12, NCP four, and independents two. The BJP joined hands with Congress under AVA to secure the council chairperson post, sidelining Shiv Sena. The Thane collector initially recognised AVA on January 7, but after political shifts, recognised the NCP-Shiv Sena tie-up on January 9, derecognising AVA. AVA challenged this decision in the High Court.

The court directed parties to submit written statements to the collector by January 28, who must issue an order within 21 days. The collector's decision will remain unenforced for two weeks, allowing aggrieved parties to approach the court. Until then, the January 7 and 9 communications will remain in abeyance.

The ruling highlights judicial intervention in local political disputes and the volatile nature of post-election alliances in Ambernath.

Accord heritage protection for Varanasi Dal Mandi: Yadav

VARANASI

Samajwadi Party (SP) president Akhilesh Yadav on Monday criticised the Uttar Pradesh government over the Dal Mandi redevelopment project in Varanasi, calling for preservation of heritage structures rather than their demolition.

The controversy erupted amid allegations that temples and statues near Manikarnika Ghat were damaged during road-widening work.

In a Hindi social media post, Yadav wrote, "Heritages are threaded like pearls; they are not demolished, they are cherished," along with photographs showing statues purportedly affected by the redevelopment. One image showed the Ahilyabai statue in debris, highlighting his concern for cultural preservation.

Earlier, Yadav had accused the ruling BJP of targeting small traders and local residents in Dal Mandi, claiming that the party prioritised benefits for its associates while oppressing shopkeepers and households. He described the situation as betrayal and warned that people would no longer tolerate such actions.

The UP government and local administration, however, denied the allegations. Officials said images of Hindu deities were being misused to spread misinformation.

EC extends TN voter roll revision deadline

CHENNAI

The Election Commission of India (ECI) has extended the deadline for filing claims and objections in the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of Tamil Nadu's electoral rolls to January 30, 2026. The extension allows eligible voters extra time to verify and correct their electoral details.

Chief Electoral Officer Archana Patnaik said the initial deadline had ended on January 18, but the Commission reviewed multiple factors to ensure maximum voter inclusion. Citizens are urged to use this extended period to add names, correct errors, or object to incorrect or duplicate entries in the voter list.

The SIR exercise, announced in October 2025, used January 1, 2026 as the qualifying date for determining voter eligibility. Draft electoral rolls were published on December 19, 2025, and claims and objections were initially accepted until January 18, 2026. The Commission, exercising powers under Rule 12 of the Registration of Electors Rules, 1960, extended the period by nearly two weeks to ensure no eligible voter is left out due to procedural or logistical challenges.

Officials emphasized that the SIR process is vital for maintaining accurate electoral rolls, removing ineligible entries, updating details, and including newly eligible voters. Claims and objections can be submitted at designated election offices or through prescribed online platforms.

The extended deadline is particularly beneficial for first-time voters, migrants, and those whose names were inadvertently missed or contain errors, enhancing the credibility and integrity of Tamil Nadu's voter list ahead of upcoming elections.

GAZA PEACE PLAN

'Gaza Peace Board could signal end of UN'

NEW DELHI

Foreign Affairs expert Robinder Sachdev on Monday said that if the proposed Gaza Board of Peace achieves its goals, it could mark the end of the United Nations. The initiative, proposed by US President Donald Trump, aims to bring stability and oversee post-conflict reconstruction in the Gaza Strip.

Sachdev welcomed Trump's invitation to Prime Minister Narendra Modi to participate, describing the region as "virtually a living hell on earth" and stressing the importance of global attention. He noted that the initiative highlights the current limitations of the United Nations, which was originally created to manage such peace efforts. "If this board comes to fruition and delivers on its objectives, it will signal the end of the United Nations system," Sachdev said.

He added that India should support and participate in efforts that promote peace in Gaza. The expert also observed that the board's model could extend beyond Gaza and serve as a template for addressing future international conflicts. "If these boards take meaningful steps, the UN could become redundant," he remarked.

The Board of Peace would oversee portfolios critical to Gaza's stabilisation, including governance, reconstruction, investment attraction, and capital mobilisation. According to a White House statement, world leaders from 60 countries have been invited to join. Countries committing USD 1 billion would secure permanent seats on the board, while others could participate for three-year terms.

This high-profile international initiative underscores the growing role of new multilateral efforts in conflict resolution, challenging the traditional UN-led processes while aiming to bring swift and practical solutions to war-torn regions like Gaza.

Chile declares 'state of catastrophe' as wildfires leave at least 18 dead

Biobio

Chilean President Gabriel Boric has declared a state of catastrophe in two regions where deadly wildfires have left at least 18 people dead. More than 50,000 people have also been evacuated in the Ñuble and Biobío regions, about 500km (300 miles) south of the capital Santiago. Boric said the death toll was expected to increase. The most dangerous fire has swept through dry forests bordering the coastal city of Concepción. About 250 homes have been destroyed, disaster officials said.

Pentagon readies 1,500 troops for potential Minnesota deployment

Washington

The Pentagon has ordered about 1,500 active-duty soldiers in Alaska to prepare for a possible deployment to Minnesota, the site of large protests against the government's deportation drive, two U.S. officials told Reuters. The U.S. Army placed the units on prepare-to-deploy orders in case violence in the midwestern state escalates, the officials said, though it is not clear whether any of them will be sent. President Donald Trump on Thursday threatened to use the Insurrection Act to deploy military forces if officials in the state do not stop protesters from targeting immigration officials after a surge in Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents.

A deadly train collision in southern Spain has left at least 39 dead, triggering a major investigation

At Least 39 Killed in Southern Spain Train Collision

ADAMUZ

At least 39 people were killed and dozens more injured after two passenger trains collided in southern Spain, marking the country's worst rail disaster in more than a decade, according to the Civil Guard. The fatal accident occurred evening when a Madrid-bound train derailed and crossed onto the opposite track, colliding head-on with an oncoming service near Adamuz, in the province of Córdoba.

Authorities said around 400 passengers and railway staff were travelling on the two trains at the time of the crash. Emergency services treated 122 people at the scene and nearby hospitals, while 48 victims, including five children, remain hospitalised. Of those admitted, 11 adults and one child are reported to be in intensive care, highlighting the severity of injuries caused by the impact. Spain's Transport Minister Óscar Puente said the death toll was not yet final and confirmed that a full-scale investigation has been launched. Describing the incident as extremely strange, Puente said all railway experts consulted by the government were extremely baffled by the circumstances surrounding the crash. He made the remarks while briefing reporters in Madrid.

Rail network operator Adif said the collision occurred at approximately 7:45 pm local time (18:45 GMT), about an hour after the northbound train departed Málaga en route to Madrid. The derailment took place on what officials described as a straight stretch of track, raising further questions about the cause of the accident.

According to Puente, the force of the collision pushed the carriages of the second train into a nearby embankment. Most of those killed or seriously injured were travelling in the front carriages of this train, which was heading south from Madrid towards Huelva.

The trains involved included a Freccia 1000 high-speed unit, capable of reaching speeds of up to 400 km/h, a spokesperson for Ferrovie dello Stato told Reuters. Rescue teams said the twisted wreckage made operations extremely challenging, with emergency workers forced to cut through mangled metal to reach trapped passengers.

UN Chief Says US Prioritises Power Over International Law

UNITED NATIONS

UN Secretary-General criticises United States' stance on global governance, saying power appears to outweigh international legal norms

The head of the United Nations, António Guterres, has sharply criticised the United States for what he described as a willingness to act with impunity and a belief that its power matters more than international law. In an interview, Guterres warned that such attitudes risk weakening the fundamental principles of the UN Charter and multilateral cooperation.

Speaking in the context of recent geopolitical events, Guterres said Washington appeared convinced that multilateral solutions were irrelevant and that the exercise of U.S. power and influence often overshadowed the norms of international law. He argued that this trend threatens the equality of nations — a core founding principle of the United Nations.

The comments come against the backdrop of significant global controversy over U.S. foreign actions in recent weeks. In early January 2026, American forces struck inside Venezuela, captured its president, Nicolás Maduro, and brought him to the United States to face criminal charges — a move widely condemned by some nations and legal experts as a breach of international law. Reuters reporting and UN statements indicated that Guterres and other UN officials viewed the operation as setting a dangerous precedent and potentially violating the UN Charter's prohibition on the use of force against the territorial integrity of states.

Guterres also highlighted repeated comments by Donald Trump, including threats regarding Greenland, which he said exemplify a wider belief among some policymakers that traditional international frameworks can be overridden by national priorities.

Trump previously used his address at the 2025 General Assembly to question the relevance of the United Nations itself, claiming to have resolved global conflicts without the organisation's involvement — remarks that Guterres said reflected a broader challenge to multilateralism.

While Guterres stressed that the UN remains extremely engaged in global peace efforts, he acknowledged the body lacks leverage compared with powerful states, raising concerns about the organisation's ability to enforce international law.

Japan PM Takaichi calls snap election three months after taking office

TOKYO

Japanese Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi will dissolve parliament, paving the way for an election next month that she hopes will give her a stronger mandate to govern.

It was an extremely weighty decision that would determine Japan's course together with the people, Takaichi told a news conference. She also told voters to entrust her with running Japan.

The vote to elect the 465 members of the House of Representatives, the lower and more powerful house in Japan, will take place on 8 February.

Takaichi and her cabinet have enjoyed high public support since taking office last October.

Her Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) currently has 199 seats - including three held by its independent partners - in the House of Representatives, the most out of any party.

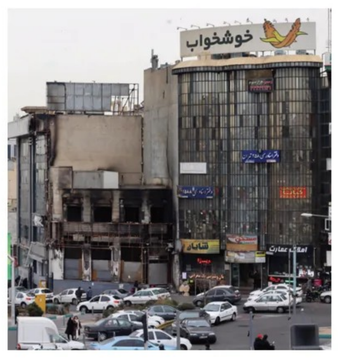
The LDP's coalition with the Japan Innovation party has just enough seats for a majority in the lower house.

A protege of former conservative PM Shinzo Abe and self-professed admirer of Margaret Thatcher, Takaichi, Japan's first female leader, is known as the country's Iron Lady.

In December, her cabinet approved a record defence budget of nine trillion yen ($57bn; £43bn). This comes amid growing concern over China, with Tokyo describing its neighbour's military activities in the region as its greatest strategic challenge.

Takaichi has found herself the target of China's ire since last November, when she made comments suggesting that Japan could respond with its own self-defence force if China attacked Taiwan.

The diplomatic spat that ensued has sent bilateral ties plunging to their lowest point in more than a decade.



Iran to consider lifting internet ban; state TV hacked

DUBAI

Iran may lift its internet blackout in a few days, a senior parliament member said on Monday, after authorities shut communications while they used massive force to crush protests in the worst domestic unrest since the 1979 Islamic Revolution.

In the latest sign of weakness in the authorities' control, state television appeared to be hacked late, briefly showing speeches by U.S. President Donald Trump and the exiled son of Iran's last shah calling on the public to revolt.

Vietnam Communist Party CongBegins Under Tight Security

HANOI

Delegates attending the Communist Party congress in Vietnam, which began on Monday, have been placed under unusually tight security measures, including restrictions on communication and movement, according to two people briefed on the arrangements. The steps underscore the political sensitivity of the once-in-five-years gathering, where the country's future leadership and policy direction will be decided.

The approximately 1,600 delegates have been issued Samsung tablet computers that do not have internet access and have been cut off from the mobile phone network for the duration of the week-long event, the sources said. In addition, participants are required to stay in designated accommodation and are not permitted to move freely, reflecting heightened efforts to prevent leaks, outside influence, or disruptions during the congress.

The congress is being held under the authority of the Communist Party of Vietnam, which dominates the country's political system. The event is considered the most important political meeting in Vietnam, setting leadership appointments and policy priorities for the next five years and beyond.

At the centre of the congress is the selection of Vietnam's top leader for the remainder of the decade.

Syria declared a nationwide ceasefire with Kurdish-led forces, ending weeks of fighting

Syrian Govt Announces Nationwide Ceasefire With Kurdish-Led SDF

DAMASCUS

The Syrian government has announced an immediate nationwide ceasefire with the Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), marking a major political and military shift that brings Damascus close to regaining full control over the country. According to Syrian state media, the ceasefire ends nearly two weeks of intense fighting and forms part of a broader 14-point agreement aimed at reintegrating the SDF into Syria's military and state institutions.

Speaking in Damascus, Syrian President Ahmed al-Sharaa said the agreement would enable state institutions to reassert authority over three strategically important eastern and northern governorates—al-Hasakah, Deir Ezzor, and Raqqa. These regions have largely remained under SDF control since the height of Syria's civil war.

The announcement followed a high-level meeting between al-Sharaa and Tom Barrack, the US special envoy to Syria, who described the deal as an important step toward a unified Syria. SDF commander Mazloum Abdi was expected to attend the meeting but was unable to travel due to adverse weather, with his visit postponed until Monday, the president said.

In a televised address, Abdi confirmed that talks with Damascus had taken place and said he would brief Syria's Kurdish population after returning from the capital. Speaking on Kurdish television channel Ronahi, Abdi said the agreement included an immediate ceasefire to prevent a wider conflict, stressing that recent fighting had been imposed on the SDF rather than initiated by it.

The SDF established its autonomous administration in northeastern Syria nearly a decade ago during the country's civil war, with strong backing from the United States.

EU Ambassadors Rally to Block Trump Tariffs

BRUSSELS

European Union ambassadors reached broad agreement to step up diplomatic efforts aimed at dissuading U.S. President Donald Trump from imposing sweeping tariffs on European allies, while simultaneously preparing retaliatory measures should the duties be implemented, according to EU diplomats familiar with the discussions. The move reflects growing concern in European capitals over what they see as an unprecedented use of trade policy to exert geopolitical pressure.

Trump vowed to roll out a wave of escalating tariffs beginning February 1 on a group of European countries, including Denmark, Sweden, France, Germany, Netherlands, and Finland, as well as United Kingdom and Norway. The threatened duties would initially stand at 10 per cent and could rise sharply in the coming months. Trump said the tariffs would remain in place until the United States is allowed to purchase Greenland, a position that has triggered strong backlash across Europe.

Senior EU officials described the threat as economic blackmail, warning that it risks undermining transatlantic relations and destabilising global trade at a time of heightened geopolitical uncertainty. Diplomats said ambassadors meeting in Brussels agreed that the immediate priority was to engage Washington through political and trade channels to prevent the tariffs from taking effect. At the same time, they emphasised the need to prepare proportionate countermeasures to protect European economic interests if talks fail.

The European Union is expected to coordinate closely with the European Commission on possible responses, which could include targeted tariffs on U.S. goods, legal challenges under international trade rules, or other defensive trade instruments. Officials stressed that unity among member states would be crucial to ensure credibility and effectiveness in any response.

EUROPE REJECTS BLACKMAIL

Europe Rejects Trump's Greenland Tariff Threats

COPENHAGEN

Denmark's Prime Minister Mette Frederiksen has issued a firm warning that Europe will not be blackmailed after US President Donald Trump threatened sweeping new tariffs over opposition to his proposed takeover of Greenland. The comments came amid mounting transatlantic tensions sparked by Washington's latest trade and security rhetoric concerning the strategically important Arctic territory.

Trump has said the United States would impose a fresh 10 per cent levy on goods imported from eight allied nations if they resist his plan to acquire Greenland, an autonomous territory within the Kingdom of Denmark. According to the US president, the tariffs would initially take effect on February 1 and could rise to 25 per cent by June. He said the duties would remain in place until such time as a deal is reached for the complete and total purchase of Greenland.

Frederiksen, along with other European leaders, issued a joint statement warning that such measures would risk undermining transatlantic relations and could trigger a dangerous downward spiral. The leaders reiterated their full solidarity with the Kingdom of Denmark and the people of Greenland, while stressing their commitment to strengthening Arctic security as a shared interest within NATO.

On Monday, Trump intensified his criticism, claiming NATO had been urging Denmark for two decades to counter what he described as a growing Russian threat in Greenland. Unfortunately, Denmark has been unable to do anything about it. Now it is time, and it will be done, he said, adding that Greenland was critical for US security. Trump has previously suggested Washington could obtain the territory the easy way or the hard way, and has not ruled out the use of force—remarks that have drawn widespread international condemnation.

The proposed tariffs would target Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, and the United Kingdom. Leaders from the eight countries emphasised their readiness to engage in dialogue, but only on the basis of sovereignty and territorial integrity. Writing separately on Facebook, Frederiksen said Denmark sought cooperation, not conflict, and welcomed the unified response from across Europe.

These are the two major units we are planning.

Sensex, Nifty end lower amid weak global cues

Mumbai

Indian stock markets ended lower on Monday as heavy selling in select heavyweight stocks dragged the benchmarks down, while global cues also remained cautious. The decline was largely led by stock-specific pressure after quarterly results from major companies such as Reliance Industries, ICICI Bank, and HDFC Bank, which emerged as the biggest drags on the market. At the close, the Sensex ended at 83,246.18, down 324.17 points or 0.39 per cent. The Nifty settled at 25,585.5, falling 108.85 points or 0.42 per cent. The Nifty remained under bearish control, with the index sustaining below the 20 EMA throughout the session.

IMF Sees Global Economy Holding Firm Amid Trade Turbulence

The IMF projects steady global growth despite trade disruptions, while cautioning that AI-led investment could heighten future vulnerabilities

WASHINGTON

The global economy has demonstrated notable resilience despite significant trade disruptions led by the United States and a backdrop of heightened uncertainty, according to the International Monetary Fund. In its January 2026 World Economic Outlook Update, released on Monday, the International Monetary Fund projected that global economic growth would hold steady at 3.3 per cent in 2026, followed by a modest easing to 3.2 per cent in 2027.

In a blog published alongside the outlook, the IMF said global growth has remained broadly unchanged from a year earlier as the world economy shakes off the immediate impact of the tariff shock. The Fund attributed this stability to easing trade tensions, supportive financial conditions, and a strong wave of technology-driven investment. Compared to its October estimates, the IMF revised its growth forecast upward by 0.2 percentage points, with most of the improvement driven by stronger-than-expected performance in the United States and China.

A central factor underpinning this resilience has been a surge in investment in information technology, particularly artificial intelligence. The IMF noted that IT investment as a share of US economic output has reached its highest level since 2001, providing a significant boost to business investment and overall economic activity. These gains have also spilled over into global trade, especially benefiting Asia's technology export sectors.

Despite the positive outlook, the Fund observed that manufacturing activity remains subdued in several regions. Nevertheless, robust corporate earnings and favourable financial conditions have supported rising equity markets, enabling firms to finance new capital spending. At the same time, the IMF warned that increased reliance on debt financing has raised leverage levels, potentially amplifying economic shocks if expected returns fail to materialise or if financial conditions tighten.

The report also highlighted risks within the technology sector itself. Profitability could become increasingly sensitive to depreciation assumptions for advanced processors, as frequent equipment upgrades squeeze margins and necessitate additional borrowing.

Government Outlines Vision as India's Reinsurance Sector

Government leaders highlighted insurance's economic role as India targets inclusive growth and transformative expansion in reinsurance markets.

MUMBAI

Underscoring the vision of Insurance for All by 2047 as a roadmap for inclusive insurance growth, M. Nagaraju, Secretary, Department of Financial Services, on Monday said the Indian insurance sector plays a critical role in strengthening the country's financial system and broader economy. He noted that insurance not only provides protection against mortality, property, and casualty risks, but also encourages household savings and supplies long-term funds for infrastructure development and other long-gestation projects.

Addressing the third IFSC–IRDAI–GIFT City Global Reinsurance Summit held in Mumbai, the Secretary said India is at the cusp of transformative growth in its reinsurance sector. He highlighted the sector's expanding scale during FY 2024–25, when insurers issued 41.84 crore policies, collected premiums amounting to Rs 11.93 lakh crore, paid claims of Rs 8.36 lakh crore, and reported assets under management of Rs 74.44 lakh crore as of March 31. The total reinsurance market in India stood at Rs 1.12 lakh crore during the same period, reflecting growing depth and sophistication.

Referring to the broader global economic environment, Nagaraju observed that India, with a population exceeding 1.46 billion, remains the world's largest democracy and, despite challenging global conditions, has emerged as a key global player. He reiterated that India continues to be the world's fastest-growing major economy, offering long-term opportunities for insurers and reinsurers alike.

On global insurance trends, the Secretary cited the Swiss Re Sigma report, noting that after strong performance in 2024, premium growth in the global insurance industry has begun to slow across both life and non-life segments. This moderation, he said, is driven by a global economic slowdown and an increasingly unstable policy environment. According to Swiss Re, India ranked as the 10th largest insurance market globally by nominal premium volumes in 2024, with a market share of 1.8 per cent.

Despite this progress, significant headroom for expansion remains. Insurance penetration in India stood at 3.7 per cent, with life insurance at 2.7 per cent and non-life insurance at 1 per cent, while insurance density rose marginally to $97.

BRO recorded its highest-ever infrastructure spending in FY25 and aims to accelerate strategic connectivity nationwide in FY26

BRO Sets New Infrastructure Benchmark with Record Spending

NEW DELHI

The Border Roads Organisation (BRO) has achieved its highest-ever annual outlay of Rs 16,690 crore in FY 2024–25 for the construction and maintenance of strategic roads, bridges, tunnels, and airfields across the country, according to an official statement issued on Monday. Building on this momentum, the organisation has set an ambitious target of Rs 17,900 crore for FY 2025–26, signalling a continued push to strengthen infrastructure in border and inaccessible regions vital for both military preparedness and civilian development.

BRO, which operates in some of the most challenging terrains in the world, currently commands 18 dynamic field projects. Of these, nine are located in North West India, covering Jammu and Kashmir, Ladakh, Himachal Pradesh, Uttarakhand, and Rajasthan. Eight projects are spread across North East and Eastern India, including Sikkim, Arunachal Pradesh, Nagaland, Mizoram, and Meghalaya, while one overseas project operates in Bhutan. Collectively, these projects span 11 States and three Union Territories, delivering strategic assets such as roads, bridges, tunnels, airfields, and tele-medicine nodes that reinforce national security and socio-economic development under initiatives like Act East and the Vibrant Villages Programme.

In Arunachal Pradesh, key BRO projects—Vartak, Arunank, Udayak, and Brahmank—are tackling some of India's most demanding frontiers. These efforts connect remote villages to the Line of Actual Control (LAC) through critical infrastructure including the Sisseri Bridge, Siyom Bridge, Sela Tunnel, and Nechiphu Tunnel.

In Ladakh, projects such as Himank, Beacon, Deepak, Vijayak, and Yojak maintain vital lifelines to Kargil, Leh, and the Karakoram region. Strategic routes including the Srinagar–Leh highway, the Darbuk–Shyok–DBO Road, the Atal Tunnel, and the under-construction Shinku La Tunnel are ensuring reliable all-weather connectivity.

The Northeast has also seen strengthened access through projects like Swastik in Sikkim, Pushpak in Mizoram, Setuk in Assam and Meghalaya, and Sewak in Nagaland and Manipur. On the western front, Sampark in Jammu and Kashmir and Chetak in Rajasthan enhance strategic mobility, while Shivalik supports the Char Dham Yatra in Uttarakhand.

Market share of homes priced above ₹1 cr reaches 63 pc

MUMBAI

The housing market in India demonstrated clear premiumisation trends with sustained demand in higher price segments, as apartments above Rs 1 crore increased their share to 63 per cent in 2025 from 53 per cent in 2024, reflecting buyers' preference for value-driven purchases despite overall volume decline, a report showed on Monday. This was especially evident in the Rs 1.5-Rs 3.0 crore category, which saw demand increase by approximately 19 per cent compared to 2024, according to the report by JLL. Chennai emerged as standout performer with exceptional 31 per cent on-year growth, reaching 14,837-unit sales. While all other cities saw a decline in sales, Bengaluru, Mumbai and Pune each surpassed 50,000 units, collectively capturing 63 per cent of annual sales. These three cities demonstrated market resilience during moderation phases, supported by robust employment, established infrastructure, strong purchasing power and quality lifestyle amenities, said the report.

India-EU Talks Focus on Trade, Defence

NEW DELHI

India and the European Union are set to announce the conclusion of a free trade agreement, firming up of a defence partnership pact and a framework for mobility of Indian professionals at the summit talks next week, diplomatic sources said on Monday.

European Council President Antonio Costa and European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen will be the chief guests at the Republic Day celebrations on January 26, and the India-EU summit will be held the next day.

A military contingent from the EU, featuring the military staff flag and flags of Operations Atalanta and Aspides, the naval operations of the grouping, will feature at the Republic Day parade. This is only the second time that India has invited leaders of a grouping – after the Asean in 2018 – to be chief guests at the celebrations, an honour reserved for the country's closest strategic and economic partners. Disruptions and geo-economic churn created by the trade policies of the US added urgency to efforts to finalise the trade deal.

RBI Governor meets UCB Leaders, Calls for Stronger Governance

NEW DELHI

Prominent UCBs represented at the meeting included Saraswat Bank (Chairman: Gautam Thakur); SVC Bank (Chairman: Durgesh Chandavarkar; CEO: Ravinder Singh); TJSB Bank (Chairman: Sharad Gangal); Cosmos Cooperative Bank (Chairman: Adv. Pralhad Kokare); Janata Sahakari Bank.

Silver at lifetime high, hits ₹3 lakh per kg on MCX

MUMBAI

Silver prices surged to a fresh lifetime high on the Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX) on Monday, with the precious white metal touching the Rs 3 lakh per kg mark during the intra-day session. The rally was driven by strong safe-haven demand amid rising global uncertainties. The rally in silver came alongside fresh record highs in gold.

The silver futures contract on MCX for March 2026 expiry opened with a strong upside gap at Rs 2,93,100 per kg and quickly extended gains to hit an intra-day high of Rs 3,01,315 per kg.

In INR silver has support at Rs 2,85,810, 2,82,170 while resistance at Rs 2,94,810, 2,96,470, an analyst stated. This marked a new all-time peak for silver on the domestic exchange. Even after some profit booking from higher levels, MCX silver prices managed to trade firmly and sustain above the crucial Rs 3 lakh per kg zone.

Gold prices also witnessed a sharp move higher. The gold futures contract on MCX for February 2026 expiry opened at Rs 1,43,321 per 10 grams and touched an intra-day high of Rs 1,45,500 per 10 grams within minutes of the opening bell. Gold has support at Rs1,41,650-1,40,310 while resistance at Rs1,44,150-1,45,670, as per the analyst. Although prices later cooled off slightly, gold continued to trade at elevated levels, showing resilience after mild profit-taking.

In the international market, COMEX gold prices are finding immediate support near $4,620 per ounce, while a stronger support zone is placed around $4,580 per ounce.

GCCs emerge as primary growth driver for India's office market

NEW DELHI

Global Capability Centres (GCCs) emerged as the primary growth driver of India's office market in 2025, accounting for 45 per cent of the total pan-India absorption, up from 41 per cent in 2024, a report showed on Monday. In absolute terms, GCC-led absorption reached 34.9 million square feet, registering a 20 per cent year-on-year increase, said the Vestian report.

The report further stated that strong demand from GCCs, supported by a favourable policy environment and restrictions on the H1-B visa, propelled pan-India office absorption to an all-time high of 78.2 mn sq ft in 2025. Despite ongoing global macroeconomic uncertainties and geopolitical headwinds, total absorption recorded an 11 per cent year-on-year growth, underscoring the resilience of India's office market, the report mentioned. Office absorption continued to outpace new supply by a wide margin in 2025, leading to a notable improvement in occupancy levels. The pan-India vacancy rate declined by 310 basis points, from 13.9 per cent in 2024 to 10.8 per cent in 2025.

BHEL Q3 SURGE

BHEL Posts Three-Fold Profit Surge in Q3 FY26

NEW DELHI

State-owned engineering major Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL) on Monday reported a robust financial performance for the third quarter of FY 2025–26, posting a more than three-fold jump in standalone net profit to Rs 382.49 crore. This marked a significant improvement over the Rs 124.77 crore profit recorded in the corresponding October–December quarter of the previous financial year, reflecting stronger operational execution and improving business conditions.

BHEL's revenue from operations rose 16.4 per cent year-on-year to Rs 8,473.10 crore during the quarter under review. The growth was supported by steady execution across both its power and industrial segments, which continue to form the backbone of the company's business portfolio. The company also maintained sequential momentum compared with the second quarter of FY26, signalling improving operating leverage and better cost efficiencies.

A segment-wise break-up showed that the power business remained the dominant contributor, with revenues of Rs 6,322.36 crore in the third quarter. The industrial segment also delivered a stable performance, generating revenues of Rs 2,150.74 crore during the same period. The sustained traction in these segments underlines BHEL's strong order execution capabilities amid a gradually improving investment environment. Alongside its financial results, BHEL cautioned that the newly implemented Labour Codes, which came into effect from November 21, 2025, could have an impact on its future financials. The government has rolled out four Labour Codes aimed at simplifying and streamlining India's labour laws, with a focus on ensuring better wages, improved safety standards, enhanced social security, and stronger welfare measures for workers.

The four Labour Codes include the Code on Wages, 2019; the Industrial Relations Code, 2020; the Code on Social Security, 2020; and the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code, 2020.

VOLCANOES Around the World

Volcanoes stand as some of nature's most awe-inspiring and formidable phenomena, shaping landscapes, influencing climates, and reminding humanity of the immense power churning beneath Earth's surface. From the fiery peaks of the Pacific Ring of Fire to the snow-capped stratovolcanoes of the Andes, these geological wonders are scattered across every continent except Australia, testament to our planet's dynamic and ever-changing nature.

No discussion of global volcanism is complete without the Pacific Ring of Fire, a 40,000-kilometer horseshoe-shaped zone encircling the Pacific Ocean. This volatile region contains about 75 percent of the world's active and dormant volcanoes, earning its name from the frequent earthquakes and eruptions that occur along its margins.

The Ring of Fire follows the boundaries of the Pacific Plate and several neighboring plates, forming a nearly continuous chain of subduction zones, volcanic arcs, and seismic belts. Beginning at the southern tip of South America, it runs north along the western coasts of Central and North America, curves through Alaska's Aleutian Islands, and then extends south past the Kamchatka Peninsula, Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia, and New Zealand.

This boundary hosts some of the planet's most famous volcanoes. Japan's Mount Fuji, known for its symmetrical cone, last erupted in 1707, blanketing nearby regions in ash and remaining under close scientific surveillance. Indonesia, situated at the intersection of three tectonic plates, contains over 130 active volcanoes, the most of any country. Krakatoa's 1883 eruption was among history's deadliest, producing massive tsunamis, audible explosions across continents, and atmospheric effects that cooled global temperatures.

Similarly, Mount Pinatubo in the Philippines erupted violently in 1991 after centuries of dormancy, releasing vast amounts of ash and sulfur dioxide that temporarily lowered Earth's average temperature by 0.5 degrees Celsius.

Understanding Volcanic Formation

At their core, volcanoes are ruptures in Earth's crust through which molten rock, gases, and debris can escape from below the surface. The planets outer shell, known as the lithosphere, is broken into massive tectonic plates that float atop the semi-molten asthenosphere. Where these plates interact—whether pulling apart, colliding, or sliding past one another—conditions become ripe for volcanic activity.

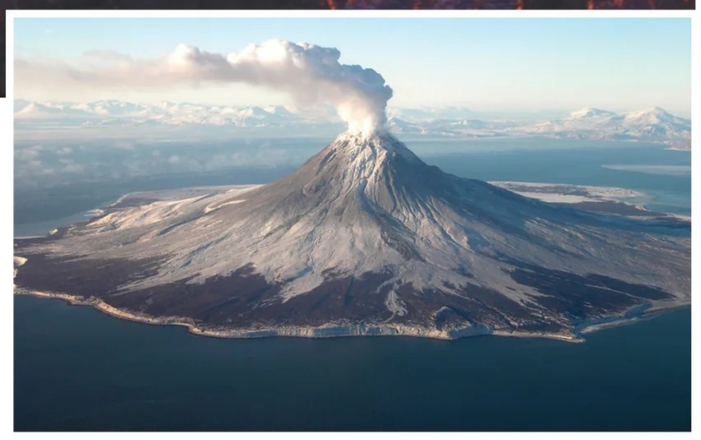
The majority of the world's volcanoes emerge along tectonic plate boundaries. Subduction zones, where one plate slides beneath another, create particularly dramatic volcanic chains. As the descending plate sinks deeper into the mantle, intense heat and pressure cause it to release water and other volatiles, which lower the melting point of the surrounding rock. This newly formed magma, being less dense than the solid rock around it, rises toward the surface, eventually erupting to form volcanoes.

Not all volcanoes form at plate boundaries, however. Hotspots—stationary plumes of exceptionally hot material rising from deep within the mantle can burn through tectonic plates like a blowtorch through metal. The Hawaiian Islands exemplify this process, with each island representing a volcano that formed as the Pacific Plate slowly moved over a stationary hotspot, creating a chain of volcanic islands stretching across the ocean.

African and Asian Volcanic Systems

Africa's volcanic activity concentrates along the East African Rift System, where the continent is slowly tearing apart. Mount Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest peak at 5,895 meters, consists of three volcanic cones, though it has been dormant for thousands of years. More active is Mount Nyiragongo in the Democratic Republic of Congo, home to one of the world's largest lava lakes. The volcano's exceptionally fluid lava can travel at speeds up to 100 kilometers per hour during eruptions, leaving little time for evacuation. In 2002, lava flows bisected the city of Goma, destroying thousands of buildings and displacing hundreds of thousands of residents.

Asia beyond the Ring of Fire also hosts significant volcanic systems. The Caucasus region contains numerous volcanoes, while Iran, Turkey, and Armenia have volcanic landscapes shaped by complex tectonic interactions. Mount Ararat, traditionally associated with the biblical account of Noah's Ark, is a dormant stratovolcano sitting on the border region between Turkey, Armenia, and Iran.



European Volcanoes

Though less numerous than in the Pacific region, European volcanoes have profoundly influenced history and culture. Italy hosts several active volcanic systems, with Mount Vesuvius being perhaps the most historically significant. The volcano's eruption in 79 CE buried the Roman cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum under meters of ash and pumice, preserving them in remarkable detail for nearly 2,000 years. Vesuvius remains active and poses a significant threat to the Naples metropolitan area, where millions of people live within potential range of future eruptions.

Mount Etna, located on the Italian island of Sicily, ranks among the world's most active volcanoes with an eruptive history spanning thousands of years. Unlike the explosive stratovolcanoes that dominate many volcanic regions, Etna frequently produces effusive eruptions of relatively fluid lava that flows down its slopes, occasionally threatening nearby towns. The volcano's persistent activity has made it a natural laboratory for volcanologists studying eruptive processes.

Iceland's volcanic landscape results from its unique position straddling the Mid-Atlantic Ridge, where the North American and Eurasian plates are actively pulling apart. This rifting creates volcanic activity combined with extensive geothermal systems that Icelanders have harnessed for heating and electricity. The 2010 eruption of Eyjafjallajökull, though relatively small, generated enormous ash clouds that disrupted air travel across Europe for weeks, reminding the modern world how vulnerable our interconnected systems remain to natural phenomena.

Volcanoes of the Americas

The Americas showcase volcanic diversity from north to south. The Cascade Range, stretching from British Columbia through Washington, Oregon, and into Northern California, contains numerous stratovolcanoes formed by the Juan de Fuca Plate subducting beneath the North American Plate. Mount St. Helens became a household name after its explosive 1980 eruption, which removed the top 400 meters of the mountain, killed 57 people, and devastated hundreds of square kilometers of forest. The eruption served as a stark reminder that even in modern times, volcanic activity can catch communities off guard with devastating consequences.

Further south, the Cascade volcanic arc includes Mount Rainier, considered one of the most dangerous volcanoes in the world due to its proximity to the Seattle-Tacoma metropolitan area and its massive volume of glacial ice. Should Rainier erupt, lahars—volcanic mudflows—could race down river valleys at highway speeds, potentially reaching areas where hundreds of thousands of people live and work.

Central America's volcanic landscape reflects the subduction of the Cocos Plate beneath the Caribbean Plate. Countries like Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica host numerous active volcanoes that have shaped both the physical landscape and cultural history of the region. Guatemala's Volcán de Fuego, one of Central America's most active volcanoes, regularly produces spectacular eruptions visible from the colonial city of Antigua. In 2018, a particularly violent eruption sent deadly pyroclastic flows cascading down populated slopes, killing hundreds and displacing thousands more.

South America's volcanic activity concentrates along the Andes Mountains, where the Nazca Plate subducts beneath the South American Plate. This process has created some of the world's highest volcanoes, many exceeding 6,000 meters in elevation. Chile and Argentina share numerous volcanic peaks, while Ecuador's Avenue of the Volcanoes contains dozens of snow-capped giants. Cotopaxi, one of the highest active volcanoes on Earth at 5,897 meters, threatens Ecuador's capital Quito with potential lahars should it erupt significantly. The volcano has erupted more than 50 times since 1738, making it one of the most active in the Andes.

Monitoring and Living with Volcanoes

Modern volcano monitoring has become increasingly sophisticated, employing networks of seismometers to detect earthquakes that often precede eruptions, GPS stations to measure ground deformation, gas sensors to analyze changes in volcanic emissions, and satellite technology to monitor thermal anomalies and ground movement from space. These tools allow volcanologists to provide increasingly accurate eruption forecasts, though predicting the precise timing and magnitude of eruptions remains challenging.

Despite the dangers, hundreds of millions of people worldwide live in the shadow of active volcanoes. The reasons are manifold: volcanic soils are exceptionally fertile, making areas around volcanoes prime agricultural land; geothermal energy provides renewable power; and many volcanic regions hold deep cultural and spiritual significance for indigenous populations who have lived alongside these mountains for generations. In places like Indonesia, the Philippines, and Central America, the benefits of volcanic landscapes have been deemed worth the risks, creating a complex relationship between humanity and these geological giants.

The Future of Volcanic Activity

Volcanic activity will persist as long as Earth's interior remains hot and dynamic. Climate change may influence eruptions as melting glaciers alter magma pressures. Improved monitoring now saves lives. Volcanoes reveal a restless planet, balancing creation and destruction, shaping landscapes for billions of years and demanding continued understanding and respect.

Villa stumble vs Everton as Premier League title race throws up shocks

Defensive error costs Villa at home as title contenders endure surprise weekend

BIRMINGHAM

Aston Villa became the latest side to falter in an increasingly unpredictable Premier League title race, suffering a 1–0 home defeat to Everton after a costly defensive mistake. The loss capped a weekend of surprising results that stalled the momentum of several teams chasing leaders Arsenal.

The decisive moment came in the 59th minute when Villa centre-back Pau Torres surrendered possession on the edge of his own penalty area. Goalkeeper Emiliano Martinez then failed to deal cleanly with a tame effort, allowing Everton striker Thierno Barry to pounce and delicately finish for the game's only goal.

Victory would have lifted Villa above Manchester City into second place and reduced the gap to Arsenal to just four points. Instead, Unai Emery's side missed a golden opportunity, mirroring the frustrations of other title challengers. Arsenal were held to a goalless draw at Nottingham Forest on Saturday, while City earlier lost 2–0 to Manchester United in the derby. Fourth-placed Liverpool also stumbled, drawing 1–1 at home to struggling Burnley.

The defeat marked Villa's first at home since August 31 and ended an impressive run of 11 consecutive home victories in all competitions at Villa Park — the club's best such streak since the 1989–90 season. Despite the setback, Villa remain level on points with second-placed City, trailing on goal difference, and sit seven points behind Arsenal.

Emery played down Villa's title credentials after the match, insisting his side were exceeding expectations. "We are still not a contender to be in the top five," he said. "There are other teams with more potential than us."

Everton's win lifted them to 10th place and further eased relegation concerns.

Elsewhere, bottom-placed Wolverhampton Wanderers continued a late resurgence by holding Newcastle United to a 0–0 draw. It was the league's 17th goalless stalemate this season and extended Wolves' unbeaten run to five games in all competitions, though they remain 14 points from safety. The draw ended Newcastle's three-match winning streak, leaving them eighth, two points shy of fifth-placed Manchester United.

Barcelona's 11-game winning run snapped in dramatic loss at Real Sociedad

Disallowed goals, woodwork strikes and heroics end Barcelona's streak in La Liga.

MADRID

Barcelona's remarkable 11-game winning streak came to an end in cruel fashion as the Catalan giants went down 2–1 to Real Sociedad in a Spanish league clash marked by controversy, near-misses and outstanding goalkeeping.

The visitors endured a night of frustration, having three goals disallowed in the first half alone, seeing a penalty decision overturned by VAR and striking the woodwork on five occasions. Despite dominating large spells, Barcelona were unable to overcome a resilient Sociedad side inspired by goalkeeper Álex Remiro, who produced a series of fine saves.

"Disappointed, because we created a lot of opportunities. The result does not reflect our game," said Barcelona coach Hansi Flick. "Sometimes you invest a lot of energy and are unlucky, but I appreciated what I saw."

Sociedad took the lead in the 32nd minute when Mikel Oyarzabal volleyed in at the far post. Barcelona eventually drew level in the 70th minute through a Marcus Rashford header, but the joy was short-lived as Gonçalo Guedes restored the hosts' advantage just a minute later with a close-range finish.

Earlier, Barcelona thought they had taken the lead when Fermín López scored from distance, but VAR ruled out the goal for a foul in the buildup. Efforts from Frenkie de Jong and Lamine Yamal were also chalked off, while Yamal had a first-half penalty reversed after being judged offside. Jules Koundé's late header striking the woodwork summed up Barcelona's evening.

The defeat leaves Barcelona just one point clear of second-placed Real Madrid, who beat Levante 2–0 on Saturday. Sociedad, meanwhile, claimed a second straight win to move up to eighth place.

Elsewhere, Atlético Madrid edged relegation-threatened Alaves 1–0 at home through an Alexander Sorloth header early in the second half. Valencia climbed out of the relegation zone with a late 1–0 win at Getafe, while Celta Vigo continued their fine form with a 3–0 home victory over 10-man Rayo Vallecano.

Nadal set for Aus Open return days after Federer exhibition match

MELBOURNE

Rafael Nadal will return to Melbourne Park this week, marking his first Australian Open appearance since stepping away from professional tennis three years ago.

Three years after his last competitive outing at the Australian Open, Nadal's presence adds further nostalgia to a tournament already celebrating its greatest champions. The Spaniard last played at Melbourne Park in 2023, when a second-round defeat was followed by an injury that eventually hastened the end of his storied career. Nadal formally retired in 2024 after representing Spain at the Davis Cup Finals. His return comes just days after longtime rival and close friend Roger Federer made an emotional comeback to Rod Laver Arena. On Saturday, Federer featured in a star-studded "Battle of the World No. 1s" exhibition doubles match alongside Ash Barty and Andre Agassi, taking on Australian greats Lleyton Hewitt and Pat Rafter as part of the Australian Open's first-ever opening ceremony. It was Federer's first appearance at the venue since 2020. Unlike Federer, Nadal will not step onto the court for an exhibition. Instead, the 22-time Grand Slam champion will headline the AO Night of Legends on the men's singles final day. Appearing at the Kia Arena alongside Ash Barty and Paralympic legend Dylan Alcott, Nadal is expected to reflect on his Australian Open journey, memorable matches and enduring legacy at the tournament.

Chaotic final sees Senegal triumph in extra time after controversial stoppage-time penalty

Senegal crowned Africa Cup champions after walk-off protest

RABAT

Senegal clinched their second Africa Cup of Nations title in extraordinary and chaotic circumstances, defeating host Morocco 1–0 in extra time after a final marred by a walk-off protest, crowd trouble and a highly controversial penalty decision late in normal time.

Pape Gueye emerged as the unlikely hero, scoring the decisive goal in the fourth minute of extra time after Senegal had survived a dramatic end to regulation. Deep into stoppage time, Senegal's players walked off the pitch to protest a penalty awarded to Morocco just moments after what appeared to be a legitimate Senegal goal was disallowed at the other end. The ensuing chaos saw fans attempting to storm the field and stewards struggling to restore order inside the Prince Moulay Abdellah Stadium.

After a stoppage of around 14 minutes, play eventually resumed. Morocco's star forward Brahim Díaz had the chance to settle the final with the last kick of normal time, but his attempted Panenka penalty was calmly saved by Senegal goalkeeper Édouard Mendy, who caught the softly chipped effort with ease.

Moments into extra time, Gueye swept a left-footed strike into the top-right corner, sparking celebrations among the Senegal players as large sections of the 69,500-capacity stadium emptied rapidly. Few spectators remained to witness captain Sadio Mané lift the trophy.

The flashpoint arrived when Senegal had a stoppage-time goal ruled out for a foul, before Morocco were awarded a penalty following a VAR review for a pull inside the box. The decision triggered clashes between players, substitutes and fans, with Senegal coach Pape Thiaw leading his team off the field in protest. "It wasn't easy, but we came back, stayed focused and gave everything," Gueye said. "Sadio told us to regroup, and Édouard's save gave us belief."

The triumph marks Senegal's second Africa Cup crown, following their 2021 victory over Egypt on penalties. For Morocco, still waiting for a first title in five decades, the loss was a bitter blow despite heavy investment in football infrastructure and home advantage.

Indian footballer Manisha Kalyan joins Peruvian club

NEW DELHI

Indian women's team midfielder Manisha Kalyan has taken another significant step in her international career, signing with Peruvian club Alianza Lima, the four-time domestic champions announced. The 24-year-old becomes one of the few Indian footballers to play professionally in South America, with Alianza Lima stating that her arrival is aimed at strengthening the team's attacking options. Manisha joins the club from Greek side PAOK FC, where she competed at the highest level of European football. Already a trailblazer, Manisha had earlier made history by becoming the first Indian footballer to feature in the UEFA Women's Champions League, a landmark achievement that raised her profile on the global stage. This move marks her third overseas club stint, following spells with PAOK FC in Greece and Apollon Ladies FC in Peru. At home, she has represented Sethu FC and Gokulam Kerala with distinction. "Alianza Lima Women's team announces the signing of Manisha Kalyan, an Indian midfielder who will bolster the team's attack," the club said in a statement, highlighting her dynamism and creativity in the final third.

Training camp for athletes, coaches inaugurated in Guwahati

GUWAHATI

The Department of Sports and Youth Welfare, Assam, in collaboration with the Inspire Institute of Sport (IIS), has inaugurated a high-performance training camp for athletes and coaches across seven sports in Guwahati. The initiative aims to develop sporting talent in the state while enhancing coaching standards through modern, internationally benchmarked methods.

The camps were inaugurated by Kausar J. Hilaly, Secretary, Sports and Youth Welfare, Government of Assam. Training for chess, table tennis, and tennis began while Taekwondo sessions are scheduled to start on Monday. Athletics, archery, and swimming will also be included under the IIS-supported high-performance framework.

The chess camp, hosted at the Civil Services Officers' Institute in Khanapara, features guidance from Bulgaria's Dejan Bojkov and India's Vishal Sareen. Forty-seven athletes and coaches from Assam are participating, with the camp running until January 27.

At Bhogeswari Phukanani Indoor Stadium in Dispur, the table tennis camp is conducted by international coach Sekpong Yomjinda from Thailand. Fifty-two athletes and six coaches from Assam are attending the sessions, which continue until January 24.

Meanwhile, the tennis camp at the Department of Sports Tennis Courts in Dispur is led by Brazilian coach Vinicius Ono, with 32 players and six coaches taking part. These camps emphasize a long-term training model aligned with India's Olympic roadmap, aiming to nurture new talent and enhance existing skills among athletes and coaches alike.

"This initiative will strengthen Assam's sporting ecosystem and provide exposure to international standards," said an official from the Department of Sports.

The high-performance camps reflect Assam's commitment to developing world-class athletes and coaching personnel, offering structured, high-quality training for the state's emerging sports talent.

India Open mess exposes poor upkeep, governance gaps at IG Stadium complex

CHENNAI

The India Open badminton tournament in New Delhi turned into an uncomfortable reflection of India's fragile sporting infrastructure, with pollution, hygiene lapses and poor stadium upkeep dominating headlines instead of elite competition. While Delhi's winter AQI woes are well documented, the problems at the Indira Gandhi (IG) Stadium complex during the 750-level BWF World Tour event ran far deeper than air quality alone.

Matches were halted repeatedly due to bird droppings falling onto the court, pigeons perched across the roof structure, and even a monkey casually wandering through the stands — scenes more befitting viral clips than a premier international sporting event. Curt reactions from players, including Denmark's Mia Blichfeldt and World No. 3 Anders Antonsen, underlined the embarrassment. Antonsen eventually withdrew citing pollution, while others openly criticised the "dirty and unhealthy" playing conditions.

The India Open, hosted since 2008 and now one rung below the elite 1000-level BWF events, attracts over 250 players from more than 20 countries. The stakes are even higher given that the venue is scheduled to host the World Championships later this year. That such disruptions occurred repeatedly — with Sunday the only uninterrupted day — inevitably revived memories of infrastructure failures from the 2010 Commonwealth Games.

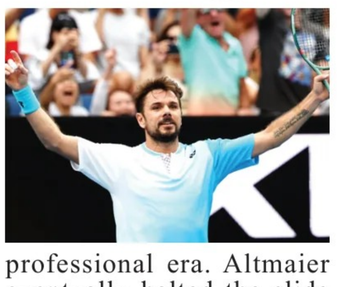
While the Badminton Association of India (BAI) handled event operations, stadium maintenance lies firmly with the Sports Authority of India (SAI), which oversees five major sports complexes in Delhi, including IG Stadium. All civil and electrical works, including renovations, are executed through the Central Public Works Department (CPWD). Despite annual maintenance budgets running into over ₹100 crore across these venues, under-utilisation and neglect remain chronic issues.

SAI officials have acknowledged long-standing pigeon infestations due to large vents and ducts, yet competitions continue to be scheduled without permanent solutions. With limited usage — just a handful of camps and bookings annually — weeks of last-minute fixes cannot compensate for years of neglect.

AUSTRALIAN OPEN 2026

Cilic storms through Altmaier as Wawrinka grinds on

MELBOURNE



Former finalist Marin Cilic rolled back the years with a blistering first-round performance at the Australian Open 2026, demolishing Germany's Daniel Altmaier 6-0, 6-0, 7-6(3) to make a fast start at Melbourne Park on Monday. Fellow veteran Stan Wawrinka also advanced, underlining the enduring presence of experience in the men's draw.

The 37-year-old Cilic, runner-up in Melbourne in 2018, won the first 12 games in ruthless fashion, briefly raising the prospect of a rare "triple bagel" in a Grand Slam main draw. Only five players have achieved the feat in the professional era. Altmaier eventually halted the slide early in the third set, snapping a 25-game losing streak dating back to last week's Adelaide International, before pushing the Croatian into a tiebreak. Cilic steadied himself after falling behind in the breaker to seal the win in emphatic style.

Wawrinka, the 2014 Australian Open champion, then joined Cilic in the second round with a battling 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 7-6(4) victory over Serbia's Laslo Djere. The 40-year-old Swiss, playing his final Australian Open after announcing 2026 will be his last season, showed trademark grit to recover from a set down and close out the match under pressure. Elsewhere, American star Coco Gauff and Russia's Daniil Medvedev also progressed, while seventh seed Felix Auger-Aliassime was forced to retire with cramp in sweltering conditions. Gauff overcame Uzbekistan's Kamilla Rakhimova 6-2, 6-3 despite an error-strewn display, and Medvedev ground out a straight-sets win over Jesper de Jong.

Youngsters must mirror Kohli's mindset after poor starts hurt India: Gavaskar

Legendary Sunil Gavaskar urges Indian youngsters to emulate Virat Kohli's situational batting mindset

NEW DELHI

Former India captain Sunil Gavaskar has attributed India's ODI series loss to New Zealand to consistently poor starts, stressing that the team's youngsters must learn from Virat Kohli's approach to batting under pressure. India went down by 41 runs in the third and final ODI in Indore, conceding the series 2–1 and suffering their first-ever home ODI series defeat to New Zealand.

Chasing a challenging target of 338, India faltered early once again, losing half their side for 159. While Kohli produced a magnificent 108-ball 124, his efforts went in vain due to the lack of substantial partnerships around him. Gavaskar said the inability to build solid foundations proved decisive throughout the series.

"Unless Virat Kohli got substantial support, it was always going to be difficult. The real problem for India has been the starts. As they say, well begun is half done," Gavaskar said. He pointed out that India's repeated failures at the top meant they were always playing catch-up while chasing big totals.

Gavaskar also highlighted how the loss of in-form batters at crucial moments tilted the balance against India. He explained that once KL Rahul was dismissed, the onus fell on relatively inexperienced players, making the chase increasingly uphill.

The former opener reserved special praise for Kohli's temperament and flexibility, urging young batters not to be constrained by perceived expectations. "Virat isn't tied down to an image. He plays according to the situation. Sometimes he starts watchfully, sometimes he attacks early. He never gives up," Gavaskar said, adding that this mindset is the biggest lesson for emerging players seeking consistency.

Gavaskar also lauded Harshit Rana's lower-order half-century, saying the youngster impressed him with his composure and ability to stay in the moment despite earlier failures. According to Gavaskar, such mental strength, combined with Kohli's situational awareness, is what India's next generation must embrace to succeed at the highest level.

India must convert starts, sharpen catching after home series loss: Gill

INDORE

India captain Shubman Gill admitted that his side's inability to convert starts into substantial scores and a series of costly fielding lapses proved decisive in their historic bilateral ODI series defeat at home against New Zealand. Gill said the difference between the two teams lay in batting longevity and execution under pressure.

"For me, it wasn't that we didn't bat well, it was that we didn't bat long enough," Gill said. "When batsmen get starts and don't convert them in high-scoring matches, it becomes very difficult. At least two batters need to play that long innings, and that's where New Zealand were better than us."

India's struggle to build on promising beginnings haunted them throughout the series, including in Indore where Virat Kohli's century briefly revived hopes. Gill acknowledged his own inability to push on after getting set in earlier games, stressing that it was a collective issue rather than an individual failing.

"When their batsmen got set, they scored long," he said. "Even in the first two matches, I got starts but couldn't convert them into big hundreds. As a batting unit, that's something we need to improve."

Gill also addressed Ravindra Jadeja's recent dip in wicket-taking impact, noting that while the all-rounder looked in good touch with the bat, the returns with the ball have not matched past standards. "Jaddu has been a strike option for us over the years. Sometimes series don't go your way, but you learn and grow from it," he said.

Fielding lapses emerged as another key concern. "We dropped catches at very important stages. On wickets like these, bowlers are forcing chances, and when catches don't stick, momentum shifts," Gill admitted.

Despite the disappointment, Gill highlighted positives, particularly Harshit Rana's emergence as a lower-order batting option and high-pace bowling prospect. Looking ahead, the skipper struck a measured note, insisting the defeat offers clarity rather than crisis as India work towards refining their approach in upcoming series.

Tata Steel Masters Chess: Praggnanandhaa falters again

WIJK AAN ZEE, THE NETHERLANDS

Defending champion R. Praggnanandhaa endured another difficult day at the Tata Steel Masters Chess as he slumped to his second successive defeat, while world champion D. Gukesh was held to a hard-fought draw by local favourite Jorden van Foreest in round two of the prestigious tournament.

Praggnanandhaa, who had enjoyed a stellar run for much of 2025, appeared to be running out of momentum as a seemingly drawable endgame slipped away against Uzbekistan's Nodirbek Abdusattorov.

Playing with the black pieces in a Queen's Gambit Declined, the Indian equalised comfortably out of the opening before a mistake on his 31st move allowed Abdusattorov to gain a crucial pawn advantage in the rook-and-pawns endgame. Although experts felt the position should still have held, Praggnanandhaa failed to find the precise defensive resources and resigned on move 60.

With zero points from two rounds, Praggnanandhaa finds himself rooted to the bottom of the standings and now faces the daunting task of mounting a comeback across the remaining 11 rounds if he is to defend his title.

Meanwhile, Gukesh showed resilience but had to be content with a draw against van Foreest. After an irregular opening, the game developed into a complex middlegame in which Gukesh sacrificed a bishop to force perpetual checks, ensuring a share of the point. The draw took his tally to one point from two games.

IND vs NZ ODI series:

Daryl Mitchell hails landmark triumph in India

INDORE

New Zealand batter calls historic ODI series win in India immensely significant.

New Zealand's dependable middle-order batter Daryl Mitchell described his side's ODI series victory in India as "very, very significant," underlining the importance of conquering one of the toughest assignments in world cricket. Mitchell, who struck back-to-back centuries in the second ODI and the series decider, played a central role in New Zealand's 2–1 triumph — their first-ever bilateral ODI series win on Indian soil.

Mitchell reflected on the journey of New Zealand teams touring India over the years and the value of those experiences. "A number of New Zealand teams have come here in the past in ODI cricket, and every time we tour India we learn and grow as a team," he said. "But to come here with this group and achieve what we have achieved is something the guys are very proud of. Some players will be heading home with big smiles on their faces."

Mitchell also spoke warmly about playing in India and the unique atmosphere that accompanies cricket in the country. Accustomed to more modest crowds back home, the New Zealand batter said the energy in Indian stadiums was something players cherished. "We're used to smaller crowds, grass banks and all that. Then you come here and experience the noise and passion. It's incredible and truly special," he added.

The 33-year-old acknowledged that his stints in the Indian Premier League had played a key role in preparing him for subcontinent conditions. Having represented Chennai Super Kings and Rajasthan Royals in the past, Mitchell said the exposure helped him understand Indian pitches and match situations better.

"I'm very grateful for the time I spent in Chennai and Rajasthan. Hopefully, I might be back here again in the future," he said. "India is a great place to tour. Playing in front of crowds like this is pretty cool and very special."

Mitchell's consistency and composure stood out throughout the series, underlining why he has increasingly become a thorn in India's flesh and a cornerstone of New Zealand's success in challenging overseas conditions.

Ramiz Raja's "Make Some Noise" Appeal Falls Flat

Realising the awkwardness, he quipped, "They don't want to make some noise," a moment that quickly went viral on social media.

AIFF, ISL clubs reach broad understanding, focus shifts to fixtures planning

ISL governance impasse eases as AIFF softens veto stance

BENGALURU

Concerns surrounding the governance structure of the Indian Super League (ISL) have eased after the All India Football Federation (AIFF) agreed to soften its stance on veto powers in the league's proposed governing framework. The breakthrough comes days after ISL clubs raised strong objections to the federation's sweeping veto authority in the initial draft of the governance charter.

With the broad consensus now in place, attention has shifted to other pressing issues ahead of the much-delayed ISL season, scheduled to begin on February 14. Clubs and the federation are expected to hold a virtual meeting by midweek to finalise the fixture list, although lingering venue-related challenges for some teams could still impact the rollout.

The governance deadlock had emerged after clubs expressed discomfort with provisions that gave AIFF leadership veto rights over a wide range of matters, including commercial decisions, budgetary changes and broadcast partnerships. Several of the 14 participating clubs felt such powers could undermine those who operate and finance the league on a day-to-day basis.

Following consultations, the AIFF has agreed to revise the draft and is expected to present an updated version to the clubs by Tuesday. Under the revised framework, the federation will retain authority over core regulatory and footballing matters such as adherence to the Laws of the Game, disciplinary and integrity issues, anti-doping measures and compliance with national and international regulations.

However, the AIFF will step back from exercising veto powers on commercial, operational and scheduling decisions, which will instead be driven by the clubs and the league's future commercial rights holder. This compromise is seen as a significant step toward restoring trust and ensuring smoother functioning of the league.

In parallel, the AIFF has issued a Request for Proposal (RFP) for broadcast rights for the truncated ISL season. Interested bidders can seek clarifications until January 27, with final submissions due by February 1, along with a refundable deposit of Rs 5 lakh. Eligibility has been limited to broadcasters or internet operators with at least three years of experience and a minimum net worth of Rs 10 crore in the 2024–25 financial year.

As governance concerns subside, stakeholders are now racing against time to ensure the season launches as planned.

Tennis Australia defends prize money amid player complaints

MELBOURNE

Tennis Australia (TA) has pushed back against growing criticism from leading players over prize money at the Australian Open, insisting competitors are well supported despite calls for a larger share of Grand Slam revenues. The response comes amid renewed pressure from the sport's elite, including two-time Grand Slam champion Coco Gauff, who warned that players would intensify their demands if concerns remain unaddressed.

The Australian Open has increased its total prize pool to a record A$111.5 million ($74.56 million) for the 2026 edition, surpassing last year's

French Open and Wimbledon purses, though still trailing the U.S. Open's $90 million payout. The hike follows a joint letter sent by top players to the four Grand Slams in April last year, urging significant improvements in prize money distribution.

Despite recent expressions of dissatisfaction from some quarters at Melbourne Park, tournament director Craig Tiley said he had not received any direct complaints from players.

T20 WORLD CUP

ICC tells B'desh to play in India or face replacement

NEW DELHI

The International Cricket Council (ICC) has issued a firm ultimatum to Bangladesh, rejecting the Bangladesh Cricket Board's (BCB) request to relocate its T20 World Cup matches away from India and warning that failure to comply with the original schedule could result in the team being replaced.

According to multiple media reports, the ICC has given Bangladesh until January 21 to confirm whether it will travel to India for the tournament, which begins on February 7 and is co-hosted by India and Sri Lanka. India are the defending champions.

The BCB had approached the ICC seeking a swap with Ireland in Group C, citing security concerns amid the ongoing diplomatic standoff between India and Bangladesh. Under the proposed arrangement, Bangladesh wanted to play its matches in Sri Lanka instead of India, while Ireland would take their place in India-based fixtures.

The ICC, however, is understood to have firmly turned down the proposal. Bangladesh are currently drawn in Group C alongside West Indies, England, Italy and Nepal, with matches scheduled in Kolkata and Mumbai. Ireland, placed in Group B with Sri Lanka, Australia, Oman and Zimbabwe, are slated to play in Colombo and Pallekele.

To address Bangladesh's concerns, a two-member ICC delegation — comprising Gaurav Saxena, General Manager (Events and Corporate Communications), and Andrew Ephgrave, General Manager (Integrity Unit) — recently visited Dhaka. The delegation reportedly briefed the BCB on security arrangements in India and reiterated the need to adhere to the published World Cup schedule.

Bangladesh's demand gained momentum following pacer Mustafizur Rahman's sudden delinking from his IPL contract with Kolkata Knight Riders, reportedly after a directive from the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI). The BCB has cited the incident as part of its concerns over player safety.

Despite these representations, the ICC has maintained that there is no basis for altering fixtures, stressing that all participating teams must honour their commitments. Should Bangladesh refuse to travel, the governing body is believed to be prepared to replace them with a lower-ranked nation to preserve the tournament's integrity.

With the deadline looming, Bangladesh now face a critical decision that could have significant sporting and reputational consequences.
